COUNCIL TENANTS FACE 7% RENTS HIKE

By VICKY LANE
vicky.lane@hertsessexnews.co.uk

COUNCIL tenants in Harlow are to be hit with average rent increases of almost £6 per week.

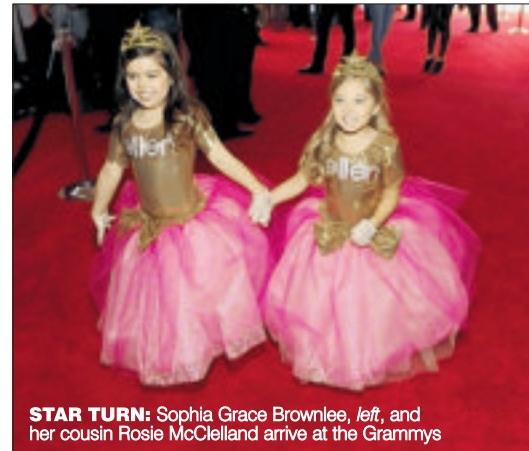

The above-inflation hike means that from April the average demand will rise from £78.16 to £83.85 – an increase of 7.3 per cent.

According to the council the cash generated from the rise – which has been set in accordance with Government guidelines – will be used to fund repairs and building maintenance work following a change in legislation that allows local authorities to retain all rent income generated.

According to the budget plans approved at Thursday's full council meeting, garage rents will also be increased with a standard garage costing 16p more a week at £7.96.

Communal heating charges for tenants will go up on average to £2.91 a week in line with rises set by energy companies, while heating bills for residents living in sheltered accommodation will rise by 30p on average per week, with limitations

Red carpet treatment for Sophia Grace at Grammys

THE incredible demand for Harlow's pocket-sized superstar Sophia Grace Brownlee is showing no signs of abating after she mingled with celebrities at the Grammy Awards in Los Angeles.

The eight-year-old from Old Harlow was given the job of interviewing stars on the red carpet alongside her cousin Rosie McClelland (5) as part of her ongoing duties for the Ellen DeGeneres Show.

At the Grammys they met a host stars including Rihanna, Katy Perry, Taylor Swift and Maroon 5.

It is the second time the girls have acted as red carpet correspondents for the American comedian's television show after covering the American Music Awards last November.

Sophia's meteoric rise to fame – which began last October when a YouTube video of her singing Nicki Minaj's Super Bass went viral – seems unstoppable.

After being scouted up by an LA talent agency, the youngster has been offered roles with Disney and Nickelodeon, appeared on chatshows across the globe, made her own short film and attracted more than 25,000 followers on her Twitter account.

Most recently a clip of her performing Kerri Hilson's version of Turn My Swag On on the Ellen Show, with an additional personalised rap written by her father Dominic, attracted over four million hits after being posted on YouTube.

Allotment holders' fury at crimewave

By VICKY LANE

vicky.lane@hertsessexnews.co.uk

ALLOTMENT holders are asking for the public's help to catch the crooks responsible for a spate of thefts which has left them more than £25,000 out of pocket.

According to the Harlow Allotment Association, six sites across the town have been robbed, vandalised or set on fire in the past four months.

Earlier this month thieves targeted the association's office in Potter Street, stealing more than £20,000 worth of equipment and wrecking the property.

Chairman Joe Bygrave said he was lost for words at the destruction. "The office was absolutely ransacked," he said. "They smashed the outside security lights, emptied the till, ruined containers, stole expensive equipment like grasscutters and a sit-on mower and even took seven big trophy cups that wouldn't have been of any value to them.

"They then went on to trash the place. I cannot understand how anyone can be capable of carrying out such appalling acts."

Mr Bygrave estimates the damage caused to the six sites – which also include Linford End, Water Lane, Nicholls Field, Felmongers and Canons Brook – to be in the region of £25,000.

"When you consider all the sheds that have been burnt down and the damage to little things like locks, it all adds up," he said. "We can't afford to replace these things."

"It is just devastating and we are now appealing for the public's help in catching those responsible by reporting anything suspicious to police straight away."

The Felmongers site was targeted last Tuesday when 20 sheds were broken into, although allotment holders had already removed anything of value from their sheds.

Agent Tom McIlhargey said: "We were expecting to be hit so fortunately no-one had left anything of great value in the sheds, but it is still so frustrating."

"It isn't fair for good honest people to have to pick up the bill and sort out the damage. These people are the scum of the earth and need to be caught."

Tony Hall, Harlow Council's portfolio holder for environment, said: "I am shocked and appalled by these incidents which are further attacks on our community facilities," he said. "We call on our residents who may know who is responsible for these incidents to report them to the police."

Parties at loggerheads in council budget row

THE long-term future of Harlow Council's discretionary services dominated the agenda at a fiery full council meeting on Thursday.

As Tory councillors pushed through plans to offload services including Harlow Museum, Pets' Corner and Parndon Wood Nature Reserve to local voluntary groups as part of a package of budget proposals for the new financial year, opposition members voiced concerns over the long-term viability of the move.

Labour group leader Mark Wilkinson told the meeting: "The way the whole process has been managed has left our residents very concerned."

"We need to provide a sustainable future for these services, not a three-year fix."

Cllr Jean Clark was equally scathing in her appraisal of the plans, claiming they were "ridiculed with ifs and buts".

"The long-term financial security of these services will depend on the providers' ability to secure grants, but what happens if something goes wrong?" she said.

"I question the viability of the proposals and am concerned that there is no plan B."

But Joel Charles, portfolio holder for community and citizenship, hit back, accusing Labour of playing "political football".

"We have guaranteed funding for the next three years so the operators can appeal for grants and secure their own future," he added.

Council leader Andrew Johnson also criticised his opponents, slamming the group for failing to produce an alternative budget for the third year running.

"They accuse us of not having a Plan B but they don't even have a Plan A."

"I wish the opposition had presented an alternative budget then we could have had a proper debate rather than a political slanging match."

He added that the budget was "momentous" for the town.

"I say momentous for three reasons," he explained. "For the third year running we have frozen council tax. For the third year running we have topped up reserves and for the third year running the Labour opposition have failed to put forward a budget."

Rents to rise 7%

imposed to safeguard tenants from fuel poverty. Plans to use £15m from the council's Housing Capital Programme to improve and maintain its housing stock were also outlined, with £2.6m allocated to energy efficiency works, £2.4m for updating kitchens and bathrooms and £1.6m for flat block refurbishments.

Speaking at Thursday's meeting, portfolio holder for housing Clive Souter said the proposals represented "good news for tenants".

"There is a large increase in rents but from this year tenants can be assured that all of their rent will be spent on their homes, something for which we have been campaigning for years," he said.

But Labour councillor John Strachan accused the Tory-led administration of using the most vulnerable to make up shortfalls.

"The poorest people are the ones who are going to suffer most," he warned.

"The Tory-run administration claim they are helping residents during these tough economic times by freezing the council tax and yet they then go and hit the people who really need that help the most the hardest."

The shop that's turning your trash into treasure

EVERYONE loves a bargain, especially in these times of financial restraint.

And shoppers visiting any of the seven St Clare Hospice shops are bound to find one. Even better, they will be supporting the charity at the same time.

St Clare's Harlow shop at the St James Centre in East Road attracts hundreds of customers every day. It is an Aladdin's Cave of shelves and rails filled with items donated by the public.

Last year the shop received more than 16,000 donations of goods and almost 27,600 boxes or bags – an average of about 75 a day – were sorted by the dedicated team of volunteers.

Items given in at the Harlow shop are put out for sale or taken to fill the shelves at any of the other six St Clare shops in Epping, Dunmow, Saffron Walden, Debden, Buckhurst Hill and Bishop's Stortford.

Annette Eaves is one of the army of volunteers whose efforts enable the Harlow shop to stay open seven days a week. She has been a volunteer for about six months, offering her help following the death of her husband Anthony, who was cared for at St Clare.

"It's giving something back," she said. "My husband died at the hospice and I always told myself that when I retired and I had time that I would come here to help."

Annette, who lives in Harlow, spends an average of about two days a week helping to sort the bags of donated goods and stocking the shelves.

"Sometimes the piles of bags can be as high as me," she said. "Whatever it is we can find a home for it."

Such is the popularity of the shop that volunteers sometimes arrive in the morning and find people waiting for the shop to open. On average between 200 and 400 transactions a day are rung up on the till.

Louise Hamilton, the hospice's retail sales manager, said: "We rely entirely

PLEASED TO HELP:
Annette Eaves is one of the army of volunteers whose efforts mean that the St Clare Hospice shop in Harlow can open seven days a week on the generosity of the local community to give us goods and we are extremely grateful for their amazing on-going generosity and support.

"In the current economic climate there is lots of competition for donated goods. Other charities, local council recycling initiatives and businesses which buy textiles direct from the public are all chasing a dwindling supply of goods."

Money raised through the shops goes straight back into helping the hospice provide its much valued services.

Louise said: "The care provided by St Clare is totally free of charge to patients, yet the cost to provide that care goes up year on year whilst our government funding remains static." She added: "If people can afford to support us financially that's fantastic, much needed and greatly appreciated.

However, if they can't afford to give us cash donations they might still be able to help us by giving goods they no longer want.

"We always try to make the most out of every item we're given. Expensive fashion items get sent to our boutique shop in Buckhurst Hill where we can achieve higher prices. Collectable items will be valued and either sent to auction or sold online and even goods which cannot be sold direct to the public can be sold on or recycled rather than put into landfill."

Last year the shops made more than £108,000 just through recycling goods – mainly textiles – which were not suitable for sale in shops.

Martin Greene works as a distribution assistant three days a week collecting large items, usually furniture, from people's homes and delivering it to the shops.

Martin, who is also a volunteer driver for the hospice's day therapy sessions once or twice a week, said: "Yesterday I had to collect a mountain bike. We cannot accept electrical items but we assess every bit of furniture. As long as it is in good condition and furniture has its fire safety labels and is not ripped, we will take it."

Martin became involved with the hospice in July 2009 when his long-time partner, Lynn, spent her final six days at St Clare when she was transferred from hospital in a coma. Martin said: "The care she received was first rate; I can't speak highly enough of it. We were fortunate to get her into the hospice. When you see what happens here you cannot fail to be impressed."

Martin, who also lives in Harlow, said: "St Clare Hospice is a well-known charity in Harlow. A lot of people have personal connections and there are not too many other charity shops in Harlow which are specifically raising money for a Harlow-based organisation."

Louise said: "When you are having a good spring clean and de-clutter, please think of St Clare Hospice and donate some of your formerly loved possessions to our Harlow shop. After all, one man's trash is another man's treasure and your donation will help local families at one of the most difficult times in their lives."

● St Clare's shop in Harlow is open Monday to Saturday from 9.30am to 4.30pm and Sunday from 11am to 4pm. For more about the shops, ring the hospice's retail team on (01279) 454596.

After 36 years in the force, the time is right to retire

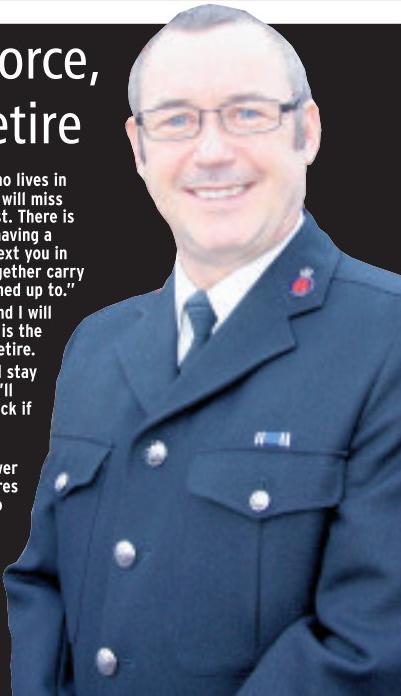

A POLICEMAN who flew to New York in the aftermath of the 9/11 terrorist attacks to assist police and fire officers affected by the disaster is about to retire from the force.

PC Terry Rackley (56) has notched up 36 years service with Essex Police after joining the constabulary as a special constable in 1976.

The father-of-two became a full-time officer two years later and went on to work in a number of departments.

During his years in the job he has received numerous commendations for his outstanding policing work, which included saving an eight-month-old baby from a fire and performing lifesaving CPR on a girl involved in a road collision.

He has also been recognised for the work he does outside the force as a traumatic risk incident manager co-ordinator, skills which he put to good use after the attacks on the twin towers of the World Trade Center in 2001.

TIME TO GO:
PC Terry Rackley

This week Mr Rackley, who lives in Harlow, told the Star: "I will miss the camaraderie the most. There is no greater feeling than having a fellow officer stand up next to you in the face of danger to together carry out the duties we all signed up to."

"There is no job like it and I will really miss it, but feel it is the right time in my life to retire.

"I know that policing will stay in my blood though and I'll never be one to stand back if someone needs help."

Mr Rackley said he was looking forward to a slower pace of life when he retires to Suffolk to be closer to his family at the end of the month.

Labour blast £17m cost of NHS reforms

CONTROVERSIAL plans for sweeping NHS reforms will cost West Essex PCT almost £17m to implement, according to the Labour Party.

The trust, which is responsible for healthcare provision across Harlow, has been forced to set aside £16,797,000 – two per cent of its annual budget – to cover the costs of the two-year transition.

A considerable chunk of the cash will have to be spent on redundancy payouts for staff set to lose their jobs in the shake-up, which will see existing commissioning bodies including primary care trusts and strategic health authorities scrapped in favour of GP-led consortia.

This week Suzy Stride, Labour's prospective Parliamentary candidate for Harlow, said the reorganisation was "reckless and unnecessary" and argued the money would be better spent on improving patient care.

"The evidence shows that the NHS is one of the best services in the world but the Tories are intent on destroying it," she told the Star.

"It is wrong to force West Essex PCT to put aside over £16m to pay for bureaucracy and redundancies when patients are waiting longer for treatment and there is pressure to close beds and wards in Princess Alexandra Hospital."

"David Cameron's reckless and unnecessary reorganisation is hitting the NHS hard with costs of more than £3bn across the country."

She added: "People in Harlow did not vote for it and now doctors, nurses, patients and apparently even members of the cabinet are united in calling for the Government to drop its plans."

But Harlow MP Robert Halfon said the Government had already covered the one-off cost of the top-down

By CHRIS MOSS, News Editor
chris.moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

restructure by ploughing an extra £24m into local NHS services over the past 18 months.

"People will remember that Labour wasted £60m on an NHS computer system that didn't work and signed contracts where it cost £300 to change a lightbulb," he added.

"By contrast, the Government's reforms are about stopping the waste and putting our GPs and hospitals like PAH in the driving seat.

"Altogether, a total of £4.5bn is being taken out of bureaucracy and ploughed back into frontline patient-care. There is a one-off cost but it is worth it. We have to invest now to get savings later."

Mr Halfon said that scrapping the strategic health authority in the east of England alone would save £45m a year in management and administrative costs.

"This can all be invested in more nurses and doctors for towns like Harlow," he said.

Food charity grateful for donations

A NEW Year appeal for donations to a charity which provides emergency food parcels to Harlow families in need saw generous shoppers hand over £320 worth of goods. Harlow Foodbank was able to feed around 30 people for three days after receiving more than 200kg of non-perishable foodstuffs from people responding to an appeal run by local church group Heart For Harlow. Charity volunteer Kevin Tierney said: "We are very grateful to Heart For Harlow for running the appeal over Christmas and the New Year and to all those who brought food in. "The generous donations have helped struggling families across Harlow make ends meet during difficult times."

Four-in-10 women miss appointments for breast screening

HEALTH experts have warned that Harlow women are putting their lives at risk by failing to take part in a free breast screening programme.

Princess Alexandra NHS Trust set up a mobile unit in the town centre to make it easier for women to get checked for signs of breast cancer, but only 59 per cent of those invited to attend kept their appointments.

"We urge everyone to attend their appointments as we are literally talking about saving people's lives," said breast service manager Janet Skeys. "Our mobile unit has recently been refurbished and contains the latest equipment and technology.

"The screening takes less than 10 minutes and the results are available two to three weeks later."

Since last July, 7,910 women have been invited for screening at mobile unit. Of the 4,628 who attended, 137 have been called back for further assessment and 33 have now started treatment after being diagnosed with breast cancer.

Mrs Skeys added: "The number of people dying from breast cancer is still significant at around 12,000 a year in the UK. But if it is caught early enough the outcomes, with modern treatments, are very good and radical surgery is not usually necessary."

Some Saturday clinics are now available and special arrangements can be made for women with a disability if they call (01279) 827046.

Rents will rise and services will be cut

SIR, Having recently attended a consultative meeting with Harlow Council as a concerned tenant to hear the local authority's plans in connection with housing under the Localism Bill, it swiftly became apparent to me that this was simply an exercise in redesigning processes and stripping away the philosophical and historical value of what council housing means and to whom it can be accessed.

Despite existing tenants maintaining their secure status, there is no doubt that rents will continue to rise and services and repairs be ever more curtailed and cut.

The security of passing one's property via successionship to close family members is also a target of change. For new tenants the prospects appear insecure and grim.

Essentially the council, should it decide to implement it, could conceivably grant only two-year fixed tenancies or, in more generous situations, a maximum of five years. Tenants would then face a review by council officers to determine whether they will be allowed to continue renting from the authority under what seems to be arbitrary criteria laid out by the council.

Chief among these criteria seems to be income. The council argues that this will free up housing prevent under and over occupation and that the advantages are that it will be needs focussed. This, I would argue, is means testing and reducing council housing down to a no-choice option perceived as being the last resort of the poor.

Furthermore, it will negatively impact on social cohesion, undermine families and lead to a two-tier perspective causing resentment among tenants of different tenure.

It is clear the Government is against council housing and does not intend to build more. What is more, they see it as a subsidised freebie enjoyed by those who currently choose it. One had only to look at the language used in the council's slides, words such as customer. I am not a customer, I'm a council tenant.

Those who were at the meeting roundly and unanimously condemned it and I hope that the council was listening. I would also remind it of its obligation to resist attacks on choice of tenure and keep to the status quo, thus truly valuing tenant participation.

Steven Harknett
Longbanks, Harlow

Call a meeting over town's litter problem

SIR, I now appreciate why so many people in Harlow choose to drive rather than walk or cycle. One week after the snow it was still not possible to walk or cycle on the cycle tracks anywhere without risking a fall.

My wife and I slithered and slid to the town centre on Sunday afternoon and it was not the most pleasant of experiences. Why are pedestrians and cyclists not considered worthy of safe

Once again Labour has failed its budget test

SIR, After spending almost 15 years serving the residents of Harlow as a councillor I am very conscious that people expect councillors of all sides to have positive ideas about how it should be run and particularly about how its finances are managed.

For many of those years I led the Conservative opposition while Labour gradually drained the council coffers dry, but we did not sit idly by. We spent time with the finance officers to make sure we understood the complexities of putting together an annual budget. We made sure we always put forward an alternative budget so that we knew our ideas and policies were not only credible but affordable.

When we came to take control of the council in May 2008 I was sure we were in a position to take up the reins from day one.

That's how we were able to get to grips straight away with the massive black hole in our finances left by Labour. That's how we have been able to control the council's finances, balance the books and maintain no rise at all in council tax for three years running while also protecting all our discretionary services.

So I am, therefore, very saddened that the once great Harlow Labour Party failed for the third year running to do the same now they are in opposition.

Not once in those three years have they put up an opposition budget to challenge my administration. Not once have they attempted to show how they would run Harlow. They just don't seem to care about Harlow anymore, so much so that I predict we will see a new left wing party in the town attempt to take their place in Harlow politics.

I am, of course, very proud that my Conservative council has shown how it can be run without having to continuously raid the reserves and without having to have interim budgets halfway through each year to sort out the economic chaos that always seems to accompany Labour at both local and national levels.

We, as Conservatives, recognise that at the moment our residents, like residents the length and breadth of the country, are still suffering the effects of Gordon Brown's recession while Labour remain in denial.

Which is why we are the only party that can be trusted with Harlow Council's purse strings.

Andrew Johnson, Leader
Harlow District Council
Civic Centre, Harlow

Tories play games with people's lives

SIR, Having attended the full council meeting on Thursday, I was struck by the Tory group repeating the mantra of a third consecutive council tax freeze, quietly ignoring the fact it benefits those living in bigger houses disproportionately. More importantly, however, council leader Andrew Johnson failed to mention that they are planning an inflation-busting rise of three per cent for every one of the next four years and that even then they will leave a £3m black hole for the next administration.

The Tories witter about the Labour group not presenting an alternative budget but I am glad that they are not indulging the Tory group in playing games with Harlow residents' lives.

If the residents of Harlow return a Labour-controlled council they will get the benefit of people who genuinely care, who listen and who will make the right choice for Harlow.

Voters returning a Labour council will result in valuing local people, of engagement, that won't spend their money on civic dinners and other indulgences.

Of course a Labour council could not promise bucking the trend against the Tory-led government cutting too far and too fast, but we can and will understand the needs of those who are most disadvantaged and protect the aspirations of hardworking families.

The Tories are hell-bent on promoting short-term policies to protect their own skins. I am determined to promote Harlow in the long term.

What happened to roadside salt bins?

SIR, What has happened to the salt/grit bins that were strategically and usefully placed at the junctions of local roads?

My neighbour knew that in the past our offshoot road of Spring Hills would not be gritted so he shovelled the snow so that cars coming up and down the hill could do so safely.

However, in the past he would also salt and grit the pavements from the bins so that pedestrians including schoolchildren could walk safely.

These bins have been removed. Is this penny-pinching at its very worse?

What is the price of keeping and refilling the bins versus the cost of safety?

Six seconds to cross road is not enough

SIR, Following on from J.M. Gillespie's regarding pedestrian crossing timings (Star, February 2), I totally agree that 40 seconds is excessive.

However, the six seconds at the Church Langley crossing opposite Tesco is not nearly enough. It's just about enough time for me to get across and I am young and fit.

The elderly and parents with children have no chance of getting across in time and clearly get anxious when the drivers of waiting cars rev their engines if they have to wait an extra few seconds!

This situation should definitely be looked into further.

MY VIEW FROM WESTMINSTER

by Harlow MP

New investment in apprenticeships will make a difference

LIKE many Harlow residents I have a passion for apprenticeships.

I employed the first ever MP's apprentice from Harlow (and now have a second), started an Apprentice School in Parliament and have worked with the NUS to set up a special Apprentice Card, giving apprentices the same rights as university students.

The economy is still difficult in Harlow but we have a good story to tell. The Conservative-led government has helped to boost the number of Harlow apprentices by 78 per cent in one year. This means that we now have 350 extra youngsters in jobs.

Across the country the number of apprentices has risen to more than 450,000, an increase of more than 50 per cent on before. Harlow is entrepreneurial and hard-working. Youth unemployment here is lower than the East of England rate and lower the national average - and it has been falling since 2009.

This is a tribute to our schools, Harlow College (now officially the best in England) and many local employers such as Smiths Industries, AST technologies, and many more besides. But we also have to face uncomfortable facts. Across the country youth unemployment is high. Since 2006 it has been at around one million. Clearly the problem does not just start when young people reach 18 and are unable to find work, it starts much earlier.

For far too long there has been a conveyor belt to the dole queue. In the past 10 years half a million children left school unable to read or write. That is why the Coalition's emphasis on pushing reading and numeracy in our schools is incredibly important. Burnt Mill School, for example, has seen a massive increase in its results on literacy and numeracy. In the past two years its number of pupils getting five good GCSEs including maths and English has risen from 27 per cent to 56 per cent, a huge leap forward. This has been achieved by opening a new IT library, stressing the importance of reading and by supplying the children with Kindles (electronic books) paid for by extra funding for the poorest pupils.

The new Youth Contract starting in April will also make a difference. It means that every young unemployed person in Harlow will be offered training and mentoring by special firms if they want it.

Finally, I have been working day

Parents blast council's decision not to grit outside special needs school

Sometimes in life we have to take responsibility. It's not always someone else's problem.

pedro

Why should the kids miss out on an important day of school just because Essex County Council can't be bothered to grit a road?

Angry bystander

If it is dangerous close the school, if it's not then don't close.

Mr Kirkby

Quite awful that ECC are not more concerned about the problem, offering some sort of support to help these people who already have a hard enough life.

Have some compassion

Residents fight plans for West Sumners housing

We do not want this development with the loss of the delightful fields/hedgerows/woods and wildlife. Not to mention the years of noise, filth and disruption.

Barry Lamb

I am pleased that Robert Halfon has clearly stated "local people should be in charge of local housing decisions". The residents of East Herts have soundly rejected building Harlow North. I hope Harlow Council will accept their right to self determination.

Nigel C

I agree that the community should decide about development - that is the idea behind localism - but it will be the entire community, not just those around the edge of the proposed development, which may well produce a result that the opposers to this development may not want.

Michael Hardware

It's the 'I'm all right, Jack' attitude as usual. I've got a nice house, I don't care about you. This country and the local area needs more houses. These protesters are definitely NIMBYs.

Suspect in Scout hut arson attack caught on CCTV

DETECTIVES investigating an arson attack that destroyed a Scout hut and forced the evacuation of 40 people from their homes have released a CCTV image of a man they want to question.

The blaze was started between 4.15pm and 6.50pm on Monday, December 19 at the headquarters of the 7th Harlow Scouts group in Manor Hatch Close. It caused extensive structural damage to the building.

As a precautionary measure more than 40 people living in neighbouring properties were evacuated to a nearby community hall for just over an hour while firefighters tackled the flames.

● To view the CCTV image, log on to the Star website at www.harlowstar.co.uk. Anyone with information about the arson attack should call PC Darren Smith at Harlow police station on 101.

Street assault victim struck with hammer

A MAN was pushed to the ground and struck with a hammer during an attempted robbery in Harlow. The victim was walking towards his car after visiting a friend in Milwards when he heard a shout of 'give me your money'.

As he turned around he was pushed to the ground and hit on his legs with the hammer. He managed to get back to his feet and return to his friend's house.

Police have issued descriptions of two youngsters they want to question about the attack. They are both white, aged in their mid to late teens, about 5ft 6ins tall and of skinny build. Both were wearing black and grey tracksuits.

Anyone with any information should call PC Jody Greenfield at Harlow police station on 101.

Woman grabbed on bottom in car park

POLICE are appealing for witnesses after a woman was sexually assaulted at a car park in Harlow town centre.

A man grabbed the victim's bottom as she was walking through a gap in the hedge between Post Office Road and the car park at about 9.30pm on Thursday.

He is described as white, aged 21-40, about 5ft 7ins tall and with facial stubble. He wore a dark blue hood or hat.

Anyone with information should call PC James Mulholland at Harlow police station on 101.

Safe goes in burglary

BURGLARS stole cash and jewellery from a house in Harlow after gaining entry by forcing open a conservatory door. They struck at the property in Mallows Green between Monday, February 6 and Wednesday, February 8.

Cash, a green metal safe and various items of jewellery were stolen.

PC Garry Bray said: "It appears they had to lift the safe over a fence in the snow and they may have carried it to a vehicle nearby."

Drama group given money to buy iPad

A STRUGGLING theatre group for young people in Harlow has received another funding boost.

The Livewire Trust received a cheque for £400 cheque from the Church Langley branch of Tesco which it will use to purchase an iPad.

Creative director Sam Ashford said the new equipment would make a huge difference to the group.

"It is absolutely fantastic to finally have a tool that can run all our multi-media, store information and assist with our communication," he said.

"The iPad will also assist with some new alternative education projects we are working on in the community, which in turn will help us develop revenue."

He added: "It is absolutely brilliant and I would like to say a massive thank you to Tesco for their ongoing support."

A new version of the group's summer showcase from last year is being performed tonight (Thursday) at the Glass Box Theatre in Harlow College from 8pm. Entrance is free with a raffle and collection being held throughout the evening.

Training dolls to help breastfeeding mums

NEW mums can now get extra breastfeeding support after Princess Alexandra Hospital took delivery of eight new tailor-made training dolls.

The life-like dolls are used alongside knitted breasts to help teach women how to position and attach their babies correctly.

The new equipment was donated to PAH by parents' charity The National Childbirth Trust and will mainly be used by community midwives and maternity care assistants on home visits.

A hospital spokeswoman said: "PAH is working towards Baby Friendly Status which is a UNICEF worldwide programme to promote, protect and support breastfeeding in health care facilities.

"Using non-invasive steps-like the dolls and in line with the UNICEF initiative, staff are actively trying to reduce the amount of mothers giving up breastfeeding early because they did not get enough support after the birth of their child."

She added: "Breast milk is a living fluid and every mum's milk is tailor-made for her own baby. It contains many ingredients which help a baby stay healthy, such as antibodies to fight germs and hormones that help development."

A BUNGLING shoplifter who fell out of a getaway car and landed at the feet of a security guard has been spared a jail sentence.

But a judge told Delvine Sweeten (31), of Little Brays, Harlow, she was lucky not to receive a custodial sentence after trying to walk out of a supermarket with a trolley full of goods.

Sweeten pleaded guilty at Chelmsford Crown Court on Friday to a charge of theft. She was sentenced to 15 days of intensive community service and ordered to attend a six-month drug rehabilitation course.

The court heard that Sweeten – who was given a suspended jail sentence last May for burglary – was caught at the Hoddesdon branch of Tesco in December last year.

She and an accomplice had entered the store, filled up a trolley with goods worth £450 and left without making any attempt to pay.

Prosecutor Anil Patani told the court: "A security guard was alerted and they were followed to a Ford Focus where the trolley's contents were being unloaded. Eighty per cent, worth about £360, had been put into the car.

"Already one occupant was in the car. A male then got in and the car engine was revved up as Sweeten got in the back but she fell out on all fours."

Neil Ross, representing Sweeten, said in mitigation she had suffered from drug addiction but had recently stopped using them except for one relapse.

Passing sentence, Judge Karen Walden-Smith told the defendant: "Shoplifting is serious but this wasn't the most sophisticated or intelligent offence. It was an act of stupidity."

"If you're going to fill up a trolley and rush out the door without paying you're bound to be caught."

She added: "The problem with shoplifting is you may see it as a victimless crime on such large organisations such as Tesco, but everyone else who goes into the shop and pays has to pay for your behaviour."

"Shoplifting is rife. The amount of money stores lose is immense and it has a knock-on effect. It was bare-fronted cheek to go in the shop and behave this way."

Schools sign up to record attempt

MORE than 1,000 children from across Harlow hit the right note when they took part in an attempt to break a world record for the most people signing and singing a song simultaneously.

At exactly 2.45pm last Wednesday, pupils from ST ALBAN'S PRIMARY, TANY'S DELL PRIMARY, HARE STREET PRIMARY, and WATER LANE PRIMARY schools joined youngsters from 900 other schools around the country for the Sign2Sing event. Organised by national charity SignHealth, the attempt to set a new record needed more than 94,489 children nationwide to take part to beat last year's total.

The aim was to raise awareness of hearing impairments while raising funds for the organisation's work to improve health care for the deaf community.

Although it has yet to be confirmed whether the record has been broken, St Albans headteacher Anne Marie McCann said they were optimistic.

"They are still counting up all the numbers at the moment but it is looking good," she said. "It went really well and was a great way for the children to learn about deafness whilst raising funds for SignHealth's important work."

"All the students donated £1 to take part and their parents have been further topping up collection buckets so we hope to have also raised a good amount."

Theresa Hanley, inclusion

manager at Tany's Dell added: "It was fantastic to see the whole school signing and singing together especially as Tany's Dell has a specialist teaching unit for children with a hearing impairment."

Oodles of noodles at new year celebrations

KIDDI CARU: Children enjoyed a taste of the Orient during a day of activities to celebrate the Chinese Year of the Dragon.

After making their own noodles to snack on during the day, youngsters at the Kiln Lane nursery tried on some traditional costumes and were shown how to write Chinese words. They then made their own lucky red money bags decorated with Chinese illustrations representing blessings of longevity, prosperity and good health.

Nursery assistant Emma Houghton said: "As we are an inclusive nursery we think it is important for our children to learn and celebrate different cultures."

"They all really embraced what we were teaching them and had fun doing the special activities. Of course they particularly enjoyed making and eating the noodles."

Why are we still waiting for parking restrictions?

A FORMER Harlow councillor has criticised the authority for failing to stop hospital staff and visitors from using his neighbourhood as a "free car park".

Lee Dangerfield, of Park Mead, claims he and neighbours are being driven up the wall by the council's refusal to make Hodings Road a permit-only parking zone for residents.

According to the former Tory councillor, pictured above, the authority promised to introduce parking restrictions in the area last year but has yet to deliver on its pledge.

"We're fed up with our road being used as a free car park for people using the hospital," he told the Star this week. "It's so bad that I often have to park hundreds of yards away from my house."

"I can't get anywhere near my own front door because staff working at Princess Alexandra Hospital have block-parked all the way along our street to be as close to work as possible.

"All residents want the council to do is to stick to their promise to make this a permit-only zone like Hamstel Road. It's just not fair on anyone living here."

The council has enforced restrictions along Hamstel Road since 2005 in a bid to prevent PAH staff and visitors from blocking residents' access to their homes.

But councillor Tony Hall, portfolio holder for the environment, said the authority had never received a formal request to introduce a similar permits-only zone in Hodings Road.

"While the council introduced a residential parking scheme nearby on Hamstel Road, it has never had a request to put a scheme along the whole length of Hodings Road," he said.

"If there is evidence of a problem and residents are supportive of the scheme and are willing to pay for permits then an application can be made to the North Essex Parking Partnership, which is responsible for introducing new schemes."

Fitness fundraisers get a buzz at Kate's gruelling bootcampathon

FITNESS fanatics showed their stamina when they took part in a gruelling 'bootcampathon' to raise more than £1,000 for a disabled children's charity. The high-intensity workout was organised by Harlow fitness instructor Kate Stanley and saw more than 40 people being put through their paces at Burnt Mill School. With seven different sessions running throughout the day ranging from kettlebell circuits to a beat the instructor challenge, Kate said the event could not have gone any better. "It was absolutely fantastic; I'm still buzzing now!" she said on Tuesday. "We had pretty much every place filled and the atmosphere was just electric. "Everyone really got stuck into the routines and even despite the ongoing aches and pains the feedback we have had since has been outstanding." The event raised £1,018 for Get Kids Going, the charity which Kate will be supporting when she runs the London Marathon later this year. "I am now half way to my fundraising target which is just brilliant," she added.

Hawks face court action over tax bill

HARLOW Town Football Club has been served with a winding-up petition by Her Majesty's Revenue & Customs over unpaid tax.

It is the second time the Hawks have fallen foul of the taxman in the past six months, with HMRC set to present its latest case at the Royal Courts of Justice in London on Monday.

The club managed to avoid a similar threat of closure last year after paying off its outstanding debts prior to a High Court appearance in November.

The Star attempted to contact HTFC chairman John Barnett and co-owner Tom Cunningham this week but neither was available for comment.

Social networking sites could hold clues to pair's attackers

POLICE hunting a gang responsible for a vicious New Year's Day attack in Harlow that left two men with serious injuries have made a fresh appeal for help.

The victims were walking near the ABC Boxing Club in Ladyshot at around 1am when they were set upon by four men, one brandishing a rounders bat.

The assault was witnessed by friends of the two victims who sought help and the attackers fled in the direction of Churchfield.

One of the victims suffered bruising to his head and deep tissue damage to his spine while the other sustained a fractured arm.

Investigating officer PC Clive Singer said: "This was an unprovoked and cowardly attack on two men, witnessed by a number of people who have assisted with our enquiries over the past few weeks.

"What I now need is for anyone who may have heard certain people bragging to their friends or on social networking sites about this incident to come forward."

Anyone with information can contact PC Singer at Harlow police station on 101.

We don't want anyone else to suffer the same heartache as us

vicky.lane@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A COUPLE who suffered the heartbreak of losing their unborn baby last year are sharing their story to raise awareness about the charity which helped them to cope.

Sarah Caunter (37), of Halling Hill, Harlow was in her last few weeks of pregnancy when she realised her baby – a girl they named Lizzie – had stopped moving in the womb. It was while visiting Princess Alexandra Hospital with husband Nick (35) to check everything was all right that they were told their baby had died.

"I can't imagine going through anything more horrific," said Sarah. "We found out we had lost Lizzie on the Monday and were booked in to give birth to her on Wednesday. It just didn't seem real."

Sarah said the help they received at the time from national stillbirth and neonatal death charity Sands was invaluable. "They were just brilliant at giving us support and information at every step," she said.

"We were both so numb we didn't know what we were doing."

Around 17 babies are stillborn or die shortly after birth every day in the UK. As well as giving emotional and informative support to bereaved parents coping with the loss of their baby, Sands funds research into preventing stillbirths and runs a number of initiatives to help make the grieving process that little bit easier.

Sarah added: "Between the hospital and Sands it was arranged for me to have a special hotel-like room away from the labour ward, which was a huge comfort.

"Sands also organised things like a chaplain

LOSS: Sarah and Nick Caunter

to come and see Lizzie, helped with funeral arrangements and encouraged us to make a memory box which has really helped with the grieving process."

Sarah is now working with Sands to help expand their services further. Her first aim is to encourage high street stores to stock babygrows for very premature children. "One of the hardest things for us was not being able to find any clothes small enough to dress Lizzie in," she said. "She was only 2lb 6oz and in the end we had to use a doll's clothes which was heartbreaking."

Sarah added: "The reality is that stillbirth and neonatal death are still shockingly common occurrences in this country. We had no indication whatsoever of what was to come and the doctor's haven't found any reason for it.

"I just hope that by working with and promoting the work of Sands we can help prevent others from having to go through such heartache."

Paul gears up for Silverstone run

A HARLOW councillor is planning to run a half marathon to raise money for breast cancer research.

Paul Schroder (30), of Riverside Court, will join thousands of other runners on Sunday, March 11 to run the Adidas Silverstone Half Marathon around the race circuit in aid of the Breast Cancer Campaign.

Paul, who will be joined by partner Wendy Spring (41) for the 13.1-mile challenge, is hoping to raise as much as possible because the charity is very dear to his heart.

"Breast cancer has members of the Harlow Running Club and as part of that we got to marshal the 2011 event at the nine-mile point," he said.

"Seeing all the runners go by really inspired me to get fit in 2012 and run the event myself so I signed up."

He added: "I now can't wait to cross the start and finishing lines that so many great F1 drivers have crossed over the years. The buzz of the day will be fantastic."

To sponsor Paul visit his webpage at www.justgiving.com/schroder-silverstone. "Wendy and I are

"I want to try and raise as much money as I can for Breast Cancer Campaign as I know it will go towards helping the

Abseil appeal

THRILLSEEKERS are again being roped in to take part in an annual charity abseil.

Now in its 15th year, the Rotary Club of Harlow Tyre's popular 110ft descent from the Church Langley water tower has already raised an incredible £600,000 for charity since it began in 1997.

Organisers are hoping to add another £50,000 to the total after this year's event, which is scheduled to take place on the weekend of May 5-6.

Abseil committee chairman Don Cramphorn said: "Abseilers can either nominate a charity or voluntary organisation of their own choice subject to our approval or can support the club's own charity fund. "The attraction is that 100 per cent of the sponsorship raised goes to their chosen beneficiary."

The entry fee is £30 per person and you must be 16 or over to take part. For more details or to download an entry form, visit www.harlowtyerotary.org.uk or call Mary Bunyard on (01279) 734211.

Staff praised

THE efforts of staff at Harlow's Mecca Bingo have been praised after they raised £1,300 for Marie Curie Cancer Care over the past two years. The club is one of 98 across the UK continuing to support the charity which provides free nursing care for the terminally ill. The aim is to reach a £1m overall total by the end of this year.

Events which have so far taken place at the clubs include a mass sky dive, cake sales, tombolas and themed party nights.

Harlow Mecca general manager Alex Cook said: "I've been so impressed with the drive and enthusiasm the team members have shown over the past two years.

"We shouldn't forget that this impressive result is also down to our generous customers; we wouldn't have been able to do this without them."

Hospice lottery

THE winner of the £1,000 prize in the St Clare Hospice lottery drawn on Friday, February 10 is ticket holder 894219, who lives in Epping. The second prize of £100 goes to the holder of ticket number 101186, who lives in Harlow.

100 lines for tickling boys with a ruler!

By VICKY LANE

vicky.lane@hertsessexnews.co.uk

IMUST read Nostalgia . . . I must read Nostalgia . . . I must read Nostalgia. So how many of you were made to write out lines as punishment when you were at school?

When regular contributor Marlene Brooks, of Little Parndon recently posted the question on a Harlow Facebook group it turned out that many former pupils of schools in the town weren't quite as well behaved as they should have been.

"My 100 lines were 'I must not tickle boys' legs under the desk in class,'" confessed Marlene, who at the time was a pupil at Passmores School.

"I was in a history class at school and had made a game of tickling the boys' legs with my ruler as many lads still wore short trousers in those days.

"Our history teacher, Mr Layfield, gave me 100 lines which I had to do after school. I ended up doing mine on the bus as I was in the school choir and we were singing in a competition that night."

"I did all mine with one pen, unlike some other kids who taped three pens together so they could do three lines at a time!"

Another former Passmores pupil and local resident Steve Hughes remembers unsuccessfully trying to make his punishment pass a bit quicker when he was given lines by his woodwork teacher Mr Cluff. He said: "The lines I received were 'I must remember my apron for woodwork'.

"I got bored so I decided to write all the 'i's in, then all the 'musts' down on the paper. The problem was I did this only to find halfway down there wasn't room for 'woodwork' so I had to start all over again!"

● What was the worst punishment you ever received at school? Confess your wrongdoings to Nostalgia, 6 West Gate, Harlow, CM20 1JW or email vicky.lane@hertsessexnews.co.uk.

UPDATE: 'Kiss me quick' hats

IT was a pleasant surprise for two brothers when they opened the Star to see a photograph of their mother. Both Clive Hawkins, of Long Ley, Harlow, and brother Alan, of St Michael's Close, got in touch after reading the article about a works trip to the seaside in the February 2 edition of Nostalgia.

"In the front row right of the photo of the ladies posing in their kiss-me-quick hats is my mother Edith Hawkins (circled), who was the forelady of the carton department at Key Glassworks," writes Clive.

"She worked for Key during and after the war, working three shifts until women stopped working at night and it went down to two."

"Sadly she died in the 1980s, five years after my dad who also worked at Key for over 50 years as a long-term shift supervisor."

Alan, who worked at Key alongside his parents before starting his own business, said the entire workforce used to organise trips to the coast.

"There was strong camaraderie between work colleagues in those days and we used to enjoy going out together," he said. "It wasn't funded by the company though; we had to organise it ourselves."

He added: "It has taken mum a long time to get her face in the paper but she got there in the end. I'm sure wherever she is now she'll be very happy."

Monkey business

A CHIMPANZEE has been hailed a genius after completing a computer memory test in the blink of an eye.

Ayumu, who was born and raised at Kyoto University in Japan, has astonished scientists with his ability to remember the position and order of a set of numbers faster than any human.

In fact, the clever chimp is so quick he can recall the complex sequences in less time than it takes the average human to blink - 60 milliseconds!

Ayumu, who is 11 years old, takes part in 'study sessions' every day during which he receives a treat every time he answers the test correctly. His number-crunching skills were discovered by Professor Tetsuro Matsuzawa, who has led a 30-year research project into chimp intelligence.

The professor told reporters: "It is not only Ayumu but also the other young ones who have the better memory than naive human adults."

"Ayumu and others can do the task with social praise. Food reward is not the essential matter."

But it's not just problem-solving at which apes excel. According to the results of a project carried out by American charity Orangutan Outreach, they seem to share our obsession with techno-gadgets as well!

Last Christmas, the charity began giving iPads to their orangutans to play with and they soon figured out how to watch videos on the devices and use the painting application.

Home Secretary joins Halfon in police praise

HOME Secretary Theresa May has praised the work of Essex Police after new figures showed the serious crime rate in Harlow had dropped over the last year.

During a debate at the House of Commons, Harlow MP Robert Halfon said there had been fewer incidents of violence, criminal damage, burglaries, harassment and anti-social behaviour in the town over the past year.

He then asked the Home Secretary to pay tribute to Essex Police, adding: "Does this not show that community led policing, with limited resources, does make a difference?"

Mrs May replied: "I am indeed happy to pay a tribute to Essex Police and the work that they have been doing in [Mr Halfon's] constituency and others, which are covered by Essex Police."

"I think we do indeed see the value of community lead policing and that is why chief constables up and down the country are making every effort to ensure they get police officers out of back office posts and actually out into the front line which is where people want to see them."

Speaking after the debate, Mr Halfon called the latest crime figures a credit to Harlow's police officers, special constabulary and community support officers.

He also praised the volunteers who provide the Street Pastor project, offering kerbside assistance to late night revellers in the town.

Harlow district commander Chief Inspector Ben Hodder said the force would continue to work with local partners to reduce all types of crime and anti social behaviour in the town.

"Obviously we are pleased with these figures and will continue to work hard to reduce those numbers further," he added.

Social club is proving popular with town's older generation

A WEEKLY social club for the elderly has been going from strength to strength following its launch last November.

The Wednesday Club meets at Harlow Town FC and gives the town's older residents the chance to get out and about and meet new people. Food, entertainment and transport to and from the stadium is provided by the club.

Stadium manager Sue Crowley said: "Over the past few months we have entertained groups from the local community and put a smile on their faces. The club has developed a hardworking, friendly team of staff and it's a pleasure for them to work on these days."

"We've also worked closely with community transport to organise the travel side, which has enabled groups who would normally struggle to get to these kind of events to attend a very enjoyable few hours with us."

Any groups interested in joining the Wednesday Club should call (01279) 443196 or e-mail susan.crowley@harlowntfc.com.

WIN Tickets to She Stoops To Conquer

ONE of the great, generous-hearted and ingenious comedies of the English language, Oliver Goldsmith's She Stoops to Conquer is a celebration of chaos, courtship and the dysfunctional family.

First performed in London in 1773, it is one of the few plays from the 18th century to have an enduring appeal, and is still regularly performed today.

In this latest production at the National Theatre on London's South Bank, Katherine Kelly plays Kate Hardcastle, with Steve Pemberton and Sophie Thompson as her parents. Hardcastle looks forward to acquainting his daughter with Charles Marlow, the son of a wealthy Londoner, with a view to marriage. But thanks to Kate's half-brother Tony Lumpkin, Hardcastle is mistaken by his prospective son-in-law for an innkeeper and his daughter for the local barmaid.

The good news is that while Marlow can barely speak to a woman of quality, he's a charmer with those of a different stamp. And so misdemeanours multiply, love blossoms and mayhem ensues.

This week we are giving you the chance to win one of five pairs of tickets to She Stoops To Conquer. Simply answer the question on the competition coupon and return it to: She Stoops To Conquer Competition, Harlow Star, PO Box 268, Cambridge, CB24 6HF by Wednesday, February 22.

Canine capers far from elementary

REVIEW

The Hound of The Baskervilles
Global Prodctions
The Playhouse, Harlow

ADAPTING Sherlock Holmes' greatest adventure for the theatre is far from elementary, but Global's taut take on the spine-tingling thriller circumnavigated the limitations of the stage with consummate ease.

With Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's classic tale bounding between the blasted wilds of Dartmoor and sprawling Baskerville Hall, this single-set production had to condense the expansive plot without sacrificing its edge-of-the-seat thrills and chills.

But by confining the action to the country pile's impeccably period-detailed drawing room – another magnificent set by David Mason – director Michael Philips created a sense of claustrophobic foreboding that helped ratchet up the mounting suspense and gave Richard Holliss the perfect platform for some sublime super-sleuthing.

Tall and willowy, he was born to play Holmes and did so with great gusto. A one-man whirlwind of clipped tones, sparkling wit and piercing perception, he lit up the stage from start to finish and clearly relished the role.

His curiously lop-sided relationship with Watson was just right, too – the detective affectionately teasing his loyal companion's weaker powers of deduction as his long-suffering sidekick (a typically solid turn by Keith Cummings) found his exasperation giving way to sheer admiration.

The supporting cast included the consistently excellent Chris Millington, who brought a calm composure to the role of Watson's former colleague Dr Mortimer, and Mark Simons, who impressed in a captivating turn as wide-eyed Sir Henry Baskerville.

Jennifer Dorian was cool and calculating as devious baddie Kathy Stapleton, whose transformation from butter-wouldn't-melt sweetness to defiant villainess provided the ultimate twist, while the brooding Terry Perkins gave her hen-pecked husband the volatile edge needed to throw the audience off the scent.

But what of the titular hound? The programme teasingly hinted at the use of a live animal but what we actually got was far more effective, a short, sharp shock at the French windows which provoked a collective shriek from the palpitating auditorium.

It was vindication, as if any were needed, of Global's masterful use of restraint throughout what proved to be a finely-tuned production that breathed new life into an old favourite.

Chance of a role in the running of am-dram group

HARLOW Theatre Company is searching for theatre-lovers keen to get involved with the day-to-day running of one of the town's most successful am-dram groups.

The group is hoping to expand this year and need new committee members to help it grow, with the newly-created roles of artistic director, technical director, fun-time co-ordinator, and internal and external publicists all up for grabs at the company's annual meeting at Victoria Hall Theatre next Wednesday.

HTC member Jim Thompson said: "As we grow as a company we have found the need to adapt and will be suggesting a more dynamic way of getting involved in the running of our company which won't necessarily need a huge time commitment as a committee member.

"There will no doubt be questions about these new roles and we would be delighted to answer them at the AGM."

The meeting takes place at the theatre in Bury Road, Old Harlow, starting at 8pm. For more information, call 07973 679364 or log on to the website www.harlowtheatrecompany.org.uk.

Silent celebration of cinema's golden age

THE ARTIST certificate PG, 1h40m

SILENCE is golden and in the case of Michel Hazanavicius's BAFTA-winning black and white silent film the gold will probably be a clutch of Oscars.

The Artist, which finally arrives in Harlow this week, charts the rise and fall of a dashing actor against a backdrop of tumultuous change in a bygone era of Hollywood.

Stripped bare of expository dialogue, expensive set pieces and digital trickery, Hazanavicius's love letter to the moving image is tender, romantic and incredibly funny, reminding us that the beating heart of any film is human emotion.

Here a single lingering glance, underscored by composer Ludovic Bource's grand orchestration, speaks louder and clearer than reams of impassioned and heartfelt confession.

During the early part of the 20th century, Lillian Gish and Greta Garbo became the queens of the silver screen in the golden age of silent movies. Then, in 1927, The Jazz Singer starring Al Jolson changed movie-making forever by successfully combining images and sound.

Within a decade, the death knell was sounded forever on silents.

Writer-director Hazanavicius steps back in time to that pivotal year, when handsome and romantically unattached screen idol George Valentin (Jean Dujardin) is setting hearts aflutter.

His films are greeted with rapturous applause and female fans clamour for his autograph.

On the set of his latest production, George meets aspiring starlet Peppy Miller (Berenice Bejo) and he is smitten.

But with the advent of sound, George's fortunes wane while Peppy's star ascends into the stratosphere, much to the delight of cigar-smoking studio boss Zimmer (John Goodman).

Fame is fickle and George and his trusty manservant Clifton (James Cromwell) fall on painfully hard times with no obvious end to their misery.

The Artist replicates film-making techniques of the past to create a warm, witty and swoonsome romance that will charm and beguile modern audiences.

Dujardin is a debonair and charismatic leading man and there is simmering screen chemistry with the luminous Bejo. George's performing dog steals one scene with tail-wagging gusto, proving that man's best friend is also his fiercest competition for the limelight.

Hazanavicius plants his tongue firmly in cheek for Goodman's scenes, whose potty-mouthed rages as a Hollywood head honcho are reduced to censored snippets of dialogue on title cards.

The film-maker uses sound sparingly in a nightmare sequence and he demonstrates directorial brio with a climactic scene involving a gunshot. A rousing, toe-tapping finale, which nods and winks playfully to feelgood cinema of the 1930s, ensures we are grinning with glee when the end credits roll.

The trio visits Los Angeles where Walter discovers that scheming oilman Tex Richman (Chris Cooper) plans to bulldoze the Muppet Theatre and drill for the black gold that lies beneath. The only way to thwart Richman is to rally the troops, so Walter galvanises Kermit (Steve Whitmire), Miss Piggy (Eric Jacobson), Fozzie Bear (Jacobson again), Gonzo (Dave Goelz) and the gang into organising a televised appeal in the company of celebrity guests including Whoopi Goldberg and Selena Gomez.

The locals including innkeeper Fisher (Shaun Dooley) and his wife (Mary Stockley), try to warn him off but Arthur persists with the help of local landowner Mr Daily (Ciaran Hinds) and glimpses mysterious woman (Liz White) dressed all in black, who is blamed for the deaths of children in the village.

A MONSTER IN PARIS The year is 1910 and Paris has been ravaged by floods. Cinema projectionist Emile (voiced by Jay Harrington) agrees to help truck driver Raoul (Adam Goldberg) make a delivery to a gargantuan greenhouse owned by a scientist. OFFERING quality made to measure blinds, curtains and shutters, William Charles Interiors was started in 2009 by partners Bill and Lucy in Buntingford. The pair originally set up the business making and fitting made to measure blinds in the town and their reputation for quality work soon grew. After a short time the pair decided to expand their range to include curtains and shutters and in 2011 made a move to premises in Bishops Stortford's South Street.

"This has been a great move for us and the people of Stortford have welcomed us" says Bill. "We are always working hard to bring better products and services to the community and are trying to bring back that old fashioned service you may have thought companies don't have anymore."

William Charles Interiors offers a measuring and fitting service in your home or business. They offer all types of blinds including roller, Venetian, Roman and vertical and all types of curtain headings including pencil, pinch and eyelet. There are more than 5000 fabrics to choose from and the company also offers all types of solid wood shutters such as full height, café style and tier on tier.

Quality Control in Estate Agency

When choosing the right estate agent through which to sell, how can you be sure you are dealing with a firm of integrity that upholds the highest principles and standard of service? After all, almost anyone can become an estate agent in this country without any qualifications or minimum service standards.

Agents who wish to demonstrate their commitment to consumer protection will be members of the Ombudsman for Estate Agents (OEA) scheme as, indeed, we are. The Ombudsman is an independent and impartial body that can listen to any complaints and award financial compensation if appropriate. Member agents agree to abide by a rigorous Code of Practice and any agent that is in the scheme can certainly be regarded as a good trader.

An important aspect of membership of the scheme is that members undertake not only to abide by a high level code, but also to be judged by an independent third party if a complaint is made, and to abide by whatever that judgement is. Any financial award that the Ombudsman makes in the consumer's favour is binding on the agent.

This is good news for the consumer. The service is free, and should any complaint against a member agent be lodged with the OEA (and, by the way, we have never had any, nor do we expect to), the matter is dealt with quickly, and conclusively, without recourse to a court of law, saving the complainant considerable time and expense.

The sale of your property is too important to entrust to just anyone. So when the time comes to sell, for peace of mind, we urge you to choose an agent who is a member of the OEA.

City Car

City streets should be blossoming with interesting new shapes come the spring. A funky facelift for the Renault Twingo is tasked with shouldering the ambitions of its maker's slimmed down operation in the UK, but it will face stiff competition from the all-new Fiat Panda due in April and mildly made-over versions of the Peugeot 107, the Toyota Aygo and the Citroen C1.

The biggest news in the baby car sector, however, is the VW Group's triple-pronged assault comprising the Volkswagen Up! and its seasonned-to-taste siblings from SEAT and Skoda – the Mii and the Citygo.

Supermini

Most of the new car action in the supermini sector is slated for the latter half of the year but sure to be attracting keen interest at reg-swap time is the three-door version of Kia's excellent new Rio which won't look any sleeker than the already rakish five-door model but will establish a key sub-£10,000 entry point into Kia's supermini range.

Moving in the other direction in April, Audi's premium offering in this class, the A1, gains an extra pair of doors but nothing more in the way of rear legroom. In the same month Alfa debuts a more eco-minded Mito, powered by an 85bhp, two-cylinder TwinAir engine. And with Olympic fever building towards the summer games, it's perhaps no surprise that official sponsor BMW is launching a special edition MINI with Olympic graphics.

Family Cars/MPVs

A pioneer for the family car arrives in March in the shape of two GM models – the Vauxhall Ampera and the Chevrolet Volt. Both promise a 50-mile electric-only range but an anxiety-quelling 1.4-litre petrol motor on board too that keeps the battery charged up on the move.

Alternatively, green-minded families can consider another hybrid but this time featuring diesel power. The Peugeot 308 Hybrid4 is the first such model to hit the market but it won't be the last.

RENAULT TWINGO

PEUGEOT 308 HYBRID4

CHEVROLET VOLT

If all that's still a bit too avant garde, Honda's futuristic-looking new Civic is still entirely conventional under the skin and better to drive than its predecessor.

It will have plenty of fresh hatchback competition to contend with as Ford's Focus range gains two new models (the 180bhp Zetec S and the 1.0-litre, three-cylinder Ecoboost) and Hyundai weighs in with its swoopier and roomier new i30 to sit alongside the i40 saloon on the showroom floor.

Sister brand Kia is on a roll, too, with its stylish Mondeo-challenging Optima saloon, to be joined in June by the all-new Ceed.

On the compact MPV front, watch out for Vauxhall's new 7-seater Zafira Sports Tourer plus a heavily reworked Mercedes-Benz which is sleeker but roomier than the outgoing model and arrives in April. Hybrid fans, however, might want to hang on for the MPV version of the Toyota Prius which lands in May.

Executive

While visitors to Audi showrooms in March will have to look hard to spot the tweaked styling and new engines imported from the A6 for its junior exec A4, arch rival BMW is being a little more adventurous with its 535i saloon-based Active Hybrid which will combine saintly economy and emissions with bruising performance.

On sale in April, a Hybrid 4 powertrain for Peugeot's 508 Estate (named the RXH) figures in the French company's plan to re-enter the sector it once occupied with the 607.

Volkswagen, meanwhile, gives us two very different versions of the Passat, though for its elegant revised CC four-door coupe it has decided to drop the 'Passat' moniker altogether in a move to give it a classier image.

No such qualms with the tough-looking Passat Alltrack, a slightly higher riding, all-wheel drive estate that comes to the Passat range surprisingly late in the day given the success of the Audi A4 and A6 Allroad.

Hang fire for a few months and some very stylish offerings hit the showrooms in time for summer: the new Lexus GS, Jaguar XF Sportbrake estate and revamped Chrysler 300C vying for the glamour model limelight.

Luxury

For real, knock-'em-dead presence we have to look to the next class up and, during the first half of the year at least, one model has the stage all to itself. The latest addition to the Porsche Panamera family, the £90,000 GTS, promises a sharper, more rewarding drive than the more expensive Turbo and Turbo S models, sacrificing a little of their phenomenal performance for keener throttle response and tauter, more agile handling.

Late summer brings the next generation Maserati Quattroporte to market and a mildly facelifted BMW 7 Series also makes its entrance.

Sports

It's a busy time at the affordable end of the sports spectrum, with hot hatches arriving from all directions throughout the year. Pocket rocket fans will welcome the February introduction of two special edition Fiat 500s – the 595 Turismo and Competizione. You'll have to wait a little longer for the 178bhp Ford Fiesta ST and to the summer for the hot hatch highlights of the year, the 250bhp Focus ST and the 277bhp Vauxhall Astra VXR. The hatch brigade won't have it all its own way, though. Hyundai's coupe-with-an-extra-door Veloster is a worthy eye-catcher and the tie-up between Toyota and Subaru will see a brace of old school, rear-drive 2+2 coupes – the Toyota GT 86 and Subaru BRZ – revive the nonsense fun of decades past.

4x4/Crossovers

This is a growing sector with a flood of new models coming later in the year but the early arrivals should more than whet your appetite.

First out of the blocks is Mercedes' muscular ML63 AMG, the most fearsome version of the new M-Class which will seldom be seen off road and, with a 5.5-litre twin-turbo V8, could be a fleeting sight on road, too.

Back in the real world, Subaru's Nissan Qashqai competitor, the XV, is based on the Impreza and tasked with reviving the brand's sagging sales. But it will have to go head-to-head with Hyundai's replacement for its ageing Santa Fe, a more compact 4x4 7-seater called the ix45, as well as Mazda's scaled-down CX-7, the CX-5. This will bring advanced green features to the party such as a lightweight steel body and a super-frugal turbodiesel engine that does away with a NOX trap yet meet EUVI emissions regulations.

The mid-sized competition gets hotter later in the year with the arrival of the all-new Honda CR-V, Citroen's first compact 4x4, the C4 Aircross, and the new, bigger Ford Kuga.

Astra GTC is Vauxhall's hot hatch

BACK in 1990 Vauxhall launched the Calibra, an affordable compact coupe based on ordinary underpinnings that was super-stylish, sensibly practical and, in its more potent forms, really very decent to drive.

It was different enough from humbler Astras and Cavaliers to be desirable yet similar enough to remain affordable both to buy and to run.

Curiously, the Calibra wasn't replaced, nor was it really replicated in the Vauxhall line-up – until late 2011 and the launch of the Astra GTC.

This Vauxhall made its debut on the UK market at a time when interest in compact coupes seemed to be on the rise. Sharing not a single body panel with an ordinary Astra, it's wider, longer, lower and more athletic looking.

And though the engines are familiar, a clever HiPerStrut suspension system means that it should feel very different to drive.

A quick glance at the badework and under the bonnet might suggest that we're again looking at something similar here but you'd be wrong.

It's true that apart from the potent 2.0-litre petrol turbo used in the flagship VXR version, GTC engineware is identical to that you'll find in any ordinary Astra. But that's only because engineering effort and investment has been directed into areas far more important to driving satisfaction.

Sharper steering, a wider track and, most importantly, a completely different suspension set-up all combine to make this the most engaging driver's car Vauxhall makes. Only a £30,000 Insignia VXR gets its power down and turns into corners as sharply – and that's only because it shares this car's clever HiPerStrut suspension system.

If you can't stretch to the frantic 280bhp VXR 155mph high performance version, then the only engine in the mainstream range likely to really get your heart pumping is the 16v 1.6-litre petrol turbo unit developing a useful 180PS.

Most GTC customers will probably opt for something a little more sensible. There are a couple of 1.4-litre petrol turbo units developing either 120 or 140PS or there's a choice of either 1.7 or 2.0-litre CDTi diesel power which can get a bit clattery in the upper reaches of the rev range. All drive through a reasonably slick six-speed manual gearbox with an auto gearbox option available on 1.4-litre petrol Turbo 140PS and 2.0 CDTi diesel models.

You expect a three-door coupe to be smaller than the five-door Hatch it's likely to be based upon but that certainly isn't the case here. This GTC is longer and wider than its more ordinary stablemate and featuring a larger wheelbase that explains the remarkable amount of space it can offer for both rear seat passengers and their luggage.

Lift the tailgate and you'll find yourself gazing at a boot that at 380-litres is actually 30-litres larger than that provided by the five-door hatch.

Inside it's all pretty user-friendly, even if it isn't very different from the layout you'd find in an ordinary Astra hatch, despite Vauxhall's attempts to lift the atmosphere with faux aluminium inserts on the centre console, air vents and doors.

Whichever Astra GTC variant you choose you should find it to be reasonably well equipped. Entry-level Sport-trimmed models include most of what you'll want – air conditioning, a decent quality MP3-compatible CD stereo with aux-in point and USB functionality, daytime running lights, seat height adjustment and a remote control alarm system. They even include 18-inch alloy wheels, cruise control and a DAB digital radio.

At this level though, some will feel that this car still doesn't feel quite special enough. It's an issue that's partly addressed by specifying your car in SRI trim – the extra £1,300 buying nice-to-have touches such as a leather-covered steering wheel, front door sill covers, dark-tinted rear windows, sports front seats and front foglamps. You also get an electronic parking brake.

Day to day running costs are not going to be markedly different from any other Astra model. In fact, when the higher residual values this GTC model will enjoy over a normal Astra hatch come into play, it's likely that this car will be cheaper to run than its ordinary stablemate.

And thanks to the a start/stop set-up standard on all models bar the 1.6-litre petrol turbo – a system that cuts the engine when you don't need it, waiting at the lights or stuck in traffic – carbon dioxide emissions certainly look competitive enough.

It would be easy to imagine many potential compact coupe customers not even trying this car, seduced as they might be by the fun of a MINI Coupe, the quality of a Volkswagen Scirocco or the style of a Peugeot RCZ. And that would be a mistake.

Unlike its direct predecessors, this is much, much more than just a three-door Astra hatch in a dress. In fact, it's arguably the best handling car in its class, certainly the most practical choice and probably the most affordable too when you take dealer offers into account.

None of which would count for very much in this market if this car didn't also look great. But it does.

BUY YOUR NEW REG 12 PLATE

Spanish favourite is an el of a car

ESSEX car retailer CMC Harlow has come up with a dozen good reasons to tempt the county's motorists to switch to a stunning new SEAT with a '12' registration when the clock strikes midnight on March 1. Most relate to the sensational series of deals available right across the dynamic Spanish car maker's sporty and stylish model line-up, which includes everything from the chic Ibiza supermini to the multi award-winning Alhambra MPV.

But the Edinburgh Way dealership's commitment to customer service and the highest levels of aftersales care will also prove deciding factors for anyone looking to be one of the first on the road with the new registration.

Paul Holmes, managing director at CMC Harlow, said: "SEAT has pulled out all the stops with a suite of deals to make switching to a new car as affordable and hassle-free as possible.

"The range of offers slashes the recommended retail price of some of our most popular and best-selling models and, when combined with the highly competitive finance deals available, a new SEAT becomes an even more attractive proposition.

"What's more, we've got loads of vehicles available for registration on March 1, so anyone ordering now could be one of the first on the road with a new '12' plate."

Among the deals on offer, a generous discount of £2,310 off the RRP of the best-selling Ibiza SC 1.4 16V SE Copa brings its asking price down to just £9,995, while similar discounts off the corresponding Ibiza 5dr and Ibiza ST models see their prices tumble to just £10,495 and £11,205 respectively.

The now-familiar SE Copa trim level brings luxurious levels of standard equipment to all three Ibiza bodystyles – sporty 3dr SC, practical 5dr and capacious ST.

It builds on the already generous S Copa spec by adding the following:

- 16in 'Fabula' alloy wheels (1.4 only);
- climate control, including refrigerated glovebox;
- rain and light sensors for automatic wipers and lights;
- dark tinted rear windows;

- leather steering wheel and gearknob; and
- auto-dimming rear view mirror.

These features come in addition to the Ibiza S Copa's medley of equipment which features the likes of cruise control, four-speaker MP3 compatible radio/CD with AUX-in and steering column-mounted controls, alarm, immobiliser and electric windows all round.

The offer price means, for instance, that the Ibiza SC 1.4 SE Copa is now available for just £199 per month as part of a 42-month Solutions Personal Contract Plan agreement (deposit of £199, terms and conditions apply, 8.9 per cent APR representative).

Move up the SEAT range to the sleek Leon five-door family hatch line-up and the new year deals are just as compelling. Savings of up to £3,085 are available on the Leon S Copa 1.6 TDI CR 105 PS which brings its price down to a remarkable £14,795. This is nothing short of the best ever RRP for the current generation of the hyper economical Leon E Ecomotive.

And with a solutions finance offer of £199 per month on the Leon S Copa 1.6 TDI CR 105 PS (deposit of £3,751.59, 42-month agreement, terms and conditions apply, 8.9 per cent APR representative) the Leon is now as affordable as it is frugal.

If you're after a Leon with a little more "oomph" then the current suite of deals includes three-year 0 per cent finance and up to three years' free servicing on all Leon FR, FR+ and Cupra R models (35 per cent deposit, maximum 36-month term, free servicing only available with SEAT finance offer, terms and conditions apply, 0 per cent APR representative).

So, a Leon 1.4 TSI FR is currently available for just £329 per month over 36 months with a customer deposit of £6,671.

Tempting offers apply right across the SEAT range, with significant RRP savings available on Altea, Altea XL and Exeo family vehicles, plus a free servicing deal on the multi award-winning SEAT Alhambra (subject to conditions, SEAT Finance deals only).

New design will open a few doors

HYUNDAI has established a reputation for its affordable coupes. No, they were never that great to drive, but they looked distinctive, were cheap to buy and offered a degree of sass without incurring big bills. It's a formula that served it well even when the small coupe market all but dried up. Where we were once overrun with Pumas, Tigras and MX3s, car manufacturers all but quit building these cars in the mid-Noughties and only recently have cars like the Scirocco, the Peugeot 307, the Mini Coupe and the Honda CR-Z signaled a resurgence.

Honda CR-Z signalled a revival. Hyundai is looking to re-establish itself in the market with a rather unusual vehicle. The Veloster features a sharply-tailored profile with two doors on one side and one on the other. Unlike the MINI Clubman, Hyundai has made the effort of ensuring that the rear passenger door is on the pavement side. Does it have the clout to carve a niche for itself?

The Veloster isn't exactly overburdened with brake horsepower, the 1.6-litre normally aspirated direct injection engine managing 138bhp. While this keeps costs manageable, it also means that the car's performance can best be described as modest. Rumours persist that a turbocharged model with around 200bhp is on the cards but in the meantime we get 138bhp. Evidence of the investment Hyundai has made in this car come with its choice of a six-speed manual gearbox or a trick dual clutch sequential box.

The Veloster's been a long time coming. The car was first seen at the 2007 Frankfurt Show and each year we have seemed to get a car that edged a little closer to production reality.

Hyundai Veloster

The Veloster is undoubtedly an intriguing piece of design. The shape itself is neat and tidy with elements that give you a repeating sense of deja vu as you walk around the car. From some angles you'll see Citroen C4 Coupe, from others Honda CR-Z while some of the surfacing is very Scirocco. The doors are a neat touch and a big investment for Hyundai to convert for right-hand drive markets.

Headroom is a little pinched in the front for taller drivers and decidedly mean in the rear. The back door opens in a conventional fashion, rather than the 'suicide door' arrangement preferred by Mazda when they needed to package a short door in their RX-8. The interior is boldly styled with a nice mix between the minimalist and the feature-rich. The show cars featured a beautiful honeycomb finish for the dash roll top although it's not certain whether this will make production. Fingers crossed. Some of the materials used betray the Veloster's keen pricing but you can't expect Prada at Primark prices.

Hyundai has split the Veloster range into two models, entry level and Sport. The latter version gets 18" alloy wheels with colour inserts, black leather upholstery with heated front seats, a panoramic sunroof with tilt and slide function, cruise control, keyless entry with engine start/stop button and sporty alloy pedals.

Standard features on the entry level car comprise 17in alloy wheels, a 7in touch screen media centre (with capability of playing games through consoles and films from smart phones), Bluetooth connectivity with voice recognition, climate control air conditioning, reversing sensors, front and rear fog lights and striking LED daytime running lights. The Veloster also features a stereo RDS Radio/CD Player with MP3/WMA compatibility and an iPod connection, with the ability to control all functions on the leather steering wheel for added convenience.

Prices start at £17,995 with a Blue Drive low emissions version of the entry-level car also available with low rolling resistance tyres and Stop/Start.

The DCT twin clutch gearbox tacks around £1,300 to the price although some will feel it's worthwhile if much of their driving is in city traffic. Hyundai also offers a media pack for the Sport model. This features touch screen satellite navigation with rear view parking camera, Parking Guidance System and 7 speakers including amplifier and subwoofer. The Sport can also be specified with a red leather interior but then prices really do start creeping up into the realms of some very serious rivals.

The Veloster fares reasonably well on emissions, the entry-level car recording 148g/km and the BlueDrive a mere 137g/km. The DCT twin clutch transmission shaves a little off the manual car's figure, bringing it down to 145g/km. A combined fuel economy figure of 47.9mpg for the manual car is a decent return and insurance groupings are very sensibly pitched at group 16E right across the board.

Depreciation is a tough one to get a handle on. Initial estimates look promising although such is the fickle finger of fashion that some coupes which initially saw strong demand – think Chrysler Crossfire as an example – then went on to suffer fairly unspectacular residuals.

Hyundai's Veloster has endured a long and drawn out gestation and is being launched into a market where the rules change very quickly. Its big USP, namely its 2+1 doors, may not be enough to overcome the fact that a number of very talented rivals offer technically more interesting vehicles.

The option of a twin-clutch transmission also marks the Veloster out as something rather special and there's a semi-exotic feel to the intimate, deeply reclined cabin.

BUY YOUR NEW REG 12 PLATE

IT'S easy to forget quite how long Toyota's Yaris has been with us. The first generation car appeared in 1999, replacing the wholly underwhelming Starlet model.

The Yaris was a vast improvement but still a modest achiever, offering reliability and low running costs while singularly failing to tweak the heart strings.

When the second generation Yaris arrived in 2005 it was bigger and better built. That model received a good refresh in 2009 with a more efficient 1.3-litre petrol engine, a revised diesel unit, improved transmissions and the addition of Stop & Start to further boost efficiency.

Further running tweaks ensued leading up to the latest version we're looking at here which ushers in sharper design, a slick new Touch & Go multi-media system and enhanced value for money with more equipment offered as standard.

Driving Experience

As before, two petrol engines are offered to Yaris buyers and both have something to be said for them.

Featuring smart VVT-i variable valve timing, the 69bhp 1.0-litre three-cylinder unit marks the entry level while those looking for more power will prefer the 100bhp 1.33-litre option which uses the more advanced Dual VVT-i configuration and gets Stop & Start technology. The diesel option is a 90bhp 1.4-litre D-4D engine.

The 1.0-litre unit takes a rather tardy 15.7s to get to 60mph which, although adequate for shopping duties, struggles out of town. The 1.33-litre Dual VVT-i engine feels much stronger during everyday driving, too – 0-60mph takes 11.7s but that's still slower than the 1.4-litre D-4D diesel's 10.7s.

As standard, the 1.33-litre engine and the diesel are mated to a clever 6-speed manual gearbox with a higher than usual 6th gear to boost fuel economy on higher speed runs. Toyota has also paid attention to smoothing out the shift action, reducing noise and bringing improved feel to the clutch pedal.

The 1.0-litre engine gets a five speed manual but the other option is Toyota's Multidrive S continuously variable transmission (CVT), which features a sequential seven-step mode that the driver can operate using either the gearshift lever or paddle shifts on the steering wheel.

Design and Build

Now into its third incarnation, this is certainly the most aggressive looking Yaris to date and the one most likely to stand out from the crowd.

The angular headlights, pronounced 'V' sculpting of front grille, re-modelled bumpers and eased-out wheelarches give the car a sturdier, more purposeful stance. Move round to the back and the chrome strip running along the boot combines with the small tailgate spoiler to further massage the up-tempo message, an effect nicely rounded off by the dark-hued 8-spoke alloy wheels.

External dimensions have stayed more or less the same which means the Yaris is a good slice shorter than a Fiesta. While this means it's easier to park, it also means that Toyota has needed to box clever when it comes to fitting four passengers and their luggage inside.

The boot is 272-litres compared to 295 in the Ford, but Toyota's impressive EasyFlat rear seats split 60:40, fold and slide bringing a useful degree of

Toyota's sassy supermini stands out from the crowd

versatility and up to 477-litres of space. Toyota's exemplary build quality is evident in the Yaris cabin and you'll search in vain for shoddily assembled trim components. That said, apart from the new multi-function steering wheel and Touch & Go multi-media system, the interior remains much as before – which is to say unadventurous, verging on the bland.

The controls are sensibly positioned and extremely easy to get to grips with, but with rival superminis offering some highly intelligent and charismatic interior designs the Yaris continues to fall a little short.

It's a shame because the car does the hard work so effectively and may lose sales due to that last one per cent of interior tinsel that's often all that's needed to generate a little showroom wow factor.

Market and Model

The basic model range structure for the Yaris is unchanged and comprises T2, TR, SR and T Spirit trim levels.

The mid-spec TR is expected to account for two thirds of UK sales and is available with all engine and transmission combinations, in three and five-door bodystyles. It comes with 15-inch alloy wheels, air conditioning, Vehicle Stability Control (VSC) and touchscreen audio controls, Bluetooth and rear parking camera.

The Touch & Go media system first debuted on the Verso-S and combines a 6.1-inch touch screen, Bluetooth connectivity and an optional sat-nav system, and can be updated with new 'apps' during the life of the car.

SR spec is teamed exclusively with the 1.33-litre Dual VVT-i petrol engine and gets 16-inch alloy wheels, a rear roof spoiler, front fog lamps, part-leather upholstery, rear privacy glass and lowered suspension.

Top of the range is the T Spirit which comes solely in five-door form powered by the 1.33-litre Dual VVT-i petrol engine. Additional kit includes a panoramic glass roof, dual-zone climate control, automatic headlights and windscreens wipers, auto-dimming rear view mirror and smart entry and start.

Cost of Ownership

Cost of ownership is one area where many of the Yaris' key rivals begin to look a little underpowered.

This generation car continues to shape up extremely well as an ownership proposition. Its residual values are better than a Fiesta's, a lot better than a Corsa's and leagues better than a Punto's.

The latest version of Toyota's three-cylinder 1.0-litre VVT-i petrol engine has been tweaked to give a four per cent improvement in combined fuel consumption returning 58.9mpg, while CO<sub>2</sub> emissions are down by seven per cent to 111g/km. The 1.33-litre Dual VVT-i engine isn't far behind, especially when matched to the Multidrive S transmission giving 56.5mpg and CO<sub>2</sub> emissions of 118g/km.

Also more efficient than before is the 1.4-litre D-4D engine. Its combined cycle fuel economy has been improved by seven per cent to 72.4mpg and CO<sub>2</sub> emissions are six per cent lower at 104g/km.

Summary

Those who felt the Toyota Yaris didn't require sassy styling to do its bidding may be a little taken aback by the latest, third-generation car – a shrinking violet no more.

The good news is it hasn't lost sight of the core values that have sustained its huge sales success. Few supermini rivals serve up such a solid blend of qualities and as the latest Yaris also offers enough in the way of creature comforts and hi-tech kit to set it apart from the class norm.

The Yaris is a vehicle that manages the essential compromises placed upon it extremely cleverly. In doing so it makes many of its rivals look a little one-dimensional.

It's well equipped, adequately spacious and now handsome in a not-so-understated fashion. But, as ever, it comes with the sort of pence per mile running costs more usually associated with claustrophobic city cars.

All told, the latest Yaris emerges as an extremely convincing package.

Your CV

When you send your CV off to a potential employer, remember that you won't be the only one. Hundreds of other people could be applying for the job as well.

So what are you going to do to make you stand out from the crowd? Why should an employer take a chance on you instead of someone else?

Your CV is your first real chance to sell yourself to a potential employer. Most employers will scan through a CV in about 30 seconds so you need to grab their attention from the start - and make them want to invite you for an interview.

There are five main areas to consider when writing your CV:

- Make sure your CV looks the part. Your CV should look clean and tidy - don't scrawl it out on a piece of A4 paper. If you haven't got access to a PC or printer, ask a friend or use your local library. Use a good quality paper and steer clear of fancy borders and front covers.

- Watch out for silly spelling and grammar mistakes. They make you look lazy and show employers that you don't really care. It's not difficult to do a spell check on your PC and if you're really stuck then don't just guess, reach for a dictionary. Get a friend to read through your CV for you - a second opinion is always useful.

- Make sure your CV is well organised. When you list your previous jobs, make sure the dates are correct and try not to leave any gaps. If you took time out to go travelling then say so - employers won't mark you down just because you've tried something new.

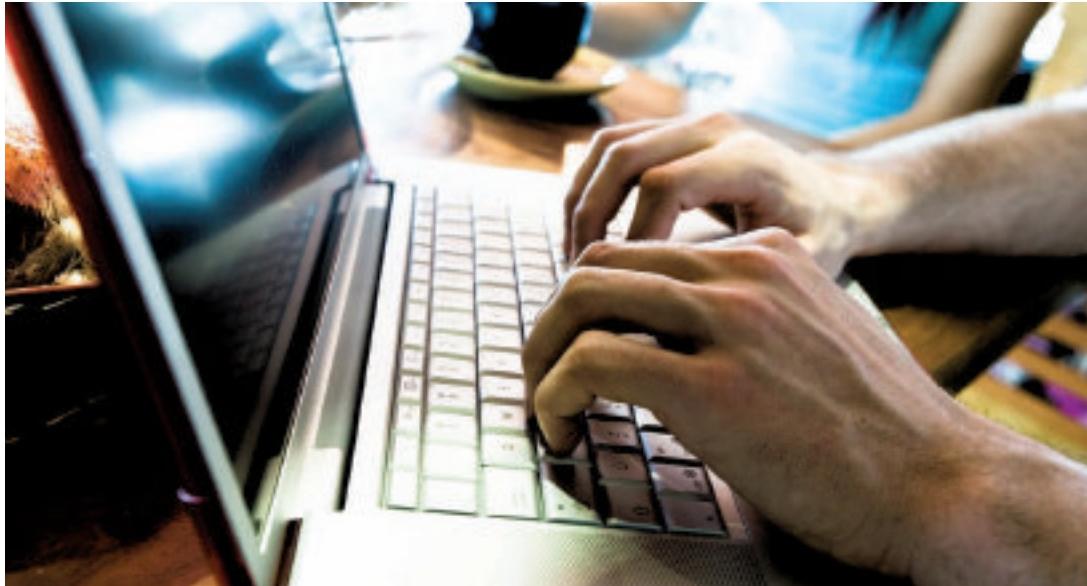

- Don't waffle. Remember that employers don't have time to read every word of your CV. Long paragraphs and sentences put people off, so try bullet-points to break up text. Make sure your CV is no longer than two pages long - employers don't want your life history, they just want to see that you've got what it takes to do the job.

- Don't list any failures. Employers have enough trouble finding someone who is right for the job - they don't need help finding reasons not to employ you. If you have to include a mistake from your past, make sure you show the employer that you learnt something from the experience.

Keep it simple

Personal details

Start off with your full name, address, date of birth, home and mobile phone numbers, email address and nationality. If you are offered an interview, the employer will want to get hold of you so give him as many options as possible.

Summary/professional profile

This is the No1 area for selling yourself. Set out your main skills and personal qualities but keep it interesting and tight - one paragraph should do to cover everything.

If you want to list them now make sure you include their name, job title, postal & e-mail address and contact phone numbers. Alternatively, just put "Available on request" so the employer knows to follow up references at a later date.

Add a covering letter

The main aim of a covering letter is to encourage an employer to give you a chance. You want them to read your CV, so sell it to them. You should always enclose a covering letter when applying for a job - most employers won't consider you unless you do.

A covering letter should let the employer know why you are interested in the job and why you think you can do it.

The hints and tips below should point you in the right direction:

- Keep it simple. A covering letter should be short and to the point - no more than six paragraphs.
- Mention the job. If you are replying to an advert, mention what the job is and where you saw it. The company may be advertising for other positions and it may not be clear which job you are applying for.
- Sell yourself. Explain why you are the perfect candidate for the job. Show off your strengths and experience. Refer to your CV - if it goes missing then at least an employer will know that you've sent it.
- Check it for mistakes. A silly spelling mistake in a covering letter is likely to cost you your chance of getting an interview. Also, make sure it is addressed to the right person in the right department.

A covering letter can be just as important as a CV in getting you an interview. It's your first point of contact with your potential employer - so make it count.

Interests & hobbies

Briefly list what you get up to in your spare time. Put down any positions you hold in clubs or associations, along with any responsibilities and achievements.

References

Make sure you have at least two people (including one from your previous or current job) who will tell an employer what a thoroughly nice person you are and what a potential asset to the company you would be.

Dog stadium Team Challenge on right track

HARLOW Greyhound Stadium's Team Challenge venture is continuing to raise thousands of pounds for charities.

The initiative invites clubs or charities to the Pinnacles venue for race nights.

Organisations get a minimum of 30 tickets and retain any money made through selling the tickets themselves.

When at the track, your team is allocated a dog number for the night.

Then every time your dog runs you get points for where it finishes.

If it wins, your team gets six points or a single point if it comes last.

The team with the highest number of points at the end of the evening also wins £100 for the club or charity of their choice.

Harlow Greyhound Stadium spokesman Mick Godderidge explained: "The greyhound track is a local leisure facility and we like to help the community as much as we can."

"In these times of financial difficulty, fund-raising is very challenging, so we find the best way to raise funds is to combine it with a value night out. We also hold larger fund-raising events as well, allowing fundraisers to use our facilities in many different ways."

If you would like to enter your team or charity into the Harlow Greyhound Stadium Team Challenge call (01279) 426804.

There's snow end to this cold snap!

THE football might have been wiped out for a second successive weekend, but it didn't stop these youngsters from enjoying an impromptu game in the snow.

This was the scene at Sawbridgeworth Town FC as the Under-7 team completed a training session despite the cold conditions.

All the local football programme was called off.

Harlow Rugby Club's league match at home to Holt, which had been rearranged, was off once again.

This fixture has been rearranged for League failed to take place.

The problem now is that warm moisture underneath the snow will damage football and rugby pitches even further.

And as the snow melts the next problem facing clubs is that these surfaces will become waterlogged.

But senior football clubs in particular will be desperate to get some matches staged as bills still have to be paid.

It's a conundrum that does not bode well for these clubs with the coffers at a low due to the credit crunch.

Silver lining at regional champs

FOURTEEN-year-old Naomi Harryman achieved silver medals in two regional indoor championships.

Competing in the U-15 girls high jump at both the Essex and Eastern Counties Indoor Championships, the Harlow Athletic Club member recorded a personal best (PB) of 1.50m.

Her single leap secured the runner-up spot in both Championships.

This took place at the Lee Valley Athletics Centre in Edmonton, North London last weekend.

Four silver medals and three bronzes were gained by Harlow athletes in these Championships.

Harlow Athletic Club member Jack Read (16) earned a silver in both the Essex and Eastern Counties' U-17 boys 200m in a PB of 24.29s.

Dan Yaxley (19) claimed an Essex bronze medal in the senior men's 400m in 55.0s.

He also got two bronze medals in the 800m (1:59.17). This race doubled up for both the Essex and Eastern Counties Championships.

Meanwhile, the snow proved no barrier to Rosie Poole as she pulled off an outstanding victory in an U-13 girls 3km race in the London City Metropolitan Cross Country League.

The 12-year-old Stewards School student clocked a course record of 11 minutes and 31 seconds in Saturday's race at Horsenden Hill in Perivale, Middlesex.

Rosie finished a massive 31 seconds ahead of the second-placed runner.

Saturday's event continued a phenomenal sequence of performances for Rosie who has won all five races this season in course record times.

Meanwhile, her younger brother Alfie, (10), a Water Lane School student, came 13th in the U-13 boys 3km race in 11:37.

In the Hertfordshire Schools Cross Country Championships at St Albans, Harlow AC member Will Snook (16) achieved a solid 13th spot in the 5.8km race.

His time on the hilly course was 19:34.

Bulls forfeit Hawks' final Founders Cup game

SHAB Niaz's Harlow Hawks were handed the points for the second week running – after their scheduled opponents pulled out just 80 minutes before the fixture at leisurezone was due to tip off.

Hawks' final group game in the National Founders Cup against Bedford Bulls was forfeited so the hosts were awarded a 20-0 walkover win.

"Bulls phoned to advise that they were only going to have five players for the game, but one of them had not shown up at the meeting time. The other four tried to contact the player without success and said that they would not be coming to the game," explained Niaz.

This was a huge blow as the Hawks had promoted the game and some people showed up to watch.

However, the majority of potential spectators (mainly club members and their families) were advised of the late cancellation via text messages.

Niaz added: "So for the second game running we have had a team forfeit the game. Yes it gives us the game, but the annoying thing is that overall positioning for the knockout stages is going to be determined by points difference between teams on the same points in various groups."

"The forfeit gives us a 20-0 win, and you can never predict, but we may have had a chance to make it a bigger winning margin than what has been awarded to us."

Rockets are ready

ONE of the stand-out fixtures of Rye House Rockets' 2012 season is an Inter-League Challenge match at the end of March which could see the return of former hero Linus Sundstrom to the Hoddesdon track.

Sundstrom's Elite League speedway team Peterborough have been lined up for an intriguing Challenge match on Saturday March 31.

Rockets will open their campaign with a League Cup trip to Ipswich on Thursday March 15, before returning the favour in their own home opener against the Witches two nights later.

New signings Jason Bunyan and Jason Garrity will be on board for these matches.

Next up will be a tough opening Premier League clash, as 2011 runners-up Sheffield visit Hoddesdon on Saturday March 24.

The Rockets will tackle Edinburgh in the opening round of the Knockout Cup, with the tie scheduled for Rye House on Saturday May 26, just 24 hours after the two sides meet in the first leg north of the border.

Other fixture highlights include the return of Ipswich – this time on Premier League duty – on Monday June 4, as part of a double header including National League action, and the visit of defending league champs Glasgow on Saturday July 21.

Once the 26-match Premier League programme is completed, the top six will progress to a play-off stage.

Coach Canham so courageous

Swimmer battles back from cancer

By ALAN SCOTT

HAVING tweaked the nose of cancer, Harlow Penguins coach Alan Canham showed tremendous courage to clinch a medal on his return to competitive swimming.

After three years out of competitive action, the 71-year-old – who thought he would never swim again – secured a bronze medal in the South East Region Masters competition.

This was just over three years after being given the all clear from the cancer that had dogged his life for five years from when he was diagnosed in 2003.

Canham was later told he was between four and six weeks away from losing his life as the aggressive disease attacked his body.

Canham, who held British records in his younger days, has been a coach at Penguins since the 1990s.

He admitted he was thankful to Professor Noel Davidson from The Rivers Hospital in High Wycombe, a consultant at the forefront of treating cancer in this country. Without his role in quickly diagnosing the cancer and treating it with chemotherapy, Canham confesses he might not be here.

Canham, who lives in North Weald, said: "I had quite an absence from swimming. For five years I was not in the water. It took a long time to recover.

MASTERFUL: Harlow' Penguins' swimmers Alan Canham and Sarah Stringer

"I had a major operation and even the anaesthetics last 12 months. I was lucky with the diagnosis. I only had four to six weeks to go. The medics don't tell you how close you are at the time. It was quite an aggressive [form of cancer].

"My swimming background helped. My fitness contributed in my recovery and that's all in the past now."

Competing at the K2 long course 50m Olympic sized pool in Crawley, West Sussex, Canham starred in his favoured 50m breaststroke event in the 70-74 years category.

He clocked a time of 45.44 seconds and was just over a second behind the winner, Morris Dick from Spencer Swimming Club.

Canham was just outside the medal placings in two other events.

He was 4th in both the 50m butterfly (41.06s) and 50m freestyle (39.21s).

Canham was just over a second short of getting the bronze medal in the freestyle.

He was accompanied by Harlow Penguins' club-mate Sarah Stringer, who excelled to gain a silver medal in the 50m butterfly, a bronze in the 50m backstroke and a 4th place in the 100m freestyle in her age group (40-44 years).

The 41-year-old clocked 40.84s for third in the 50m backstroke and was agonisingly close to the silver medal winner, Margaret Cragg (Lewes) who finished in 40.68s.

Stringer's second spot in the 50m butterfly came after a time of 37.10s. She was just over a second behind the winner Catherine Shearn (Basingstoke) in 35.75s.

In the 100m freestyle, the Harlow swimmer clocked 1 minute 16.53s and was just three seconds outside the bronze medallist's time.

But for Canham, his greatest joy is coaching young swimmers and he will now turn his attention back to this.

Since the closure of the Penguins' previous home in Second Avenue in 2007 for health and safety reasons, it has been a difficult time for the club as membership dwindled to just 40.

But it is thriving at the plush leisure complex which has been its home for the last year. Membership has grown to 250 over that time.

"I enjoy coaching more than swimming," added Canham.

● HARLOW Penguins are recruiting keen swimmers to join their Masters squad and offer both coaching & competitions.

Sessions would also suit triathletes.

Gold for Rebecca at Midlands Champs

ONE gold medal and three silvers were gained by two Harlow Tae Kwon Do members at the South Midlands Area Championships. The event, held at the Hereford Leisure Centre in Herefordshire, saw 10-year-old Rebecca Howlett come first in the junior girls blue belt pee wee division from a field of 16. In a sparring team, made up of two blue belts and a red stripe holder, Rebecca also gained a silver medal. Whitbread also entered the team sparring and gained a silver medal. This was despite having to compete

>>cross country

JARED Bethell took pride of place in the last event of a local cross country league.

The Harlow Running Club member came first in Sunday's 4.7-mile race at Bishop's Stortford in slippery conditions.

He was followed home by club colleagues Rob Lowe (8th), Steve Mackenzie (16th) and Paul Jeffrey-Read (17th).

Sharon Wright was the first Harlow woman finisher, coming 10th, and she was followed home by Vicky Steadman (14th), Zoe Delaney (16th), Odette Galea (29th) and Karen Moir (40th).

Harlow, who were missing some top runners, finished third in the men's team event and fourth in the women's event.

This dashed their hopes of winning the series.

Harlow were second before the league's last race, but they came third in the final standings, with 10 points behind winners Saffron Striders (14) and runners-up Ware Joggers (11).

Stortford were fourth with three points.

Other Harlow RC results:- men: Jamie Jephcott 21st; John Evans 27th; Marc Lowers 29th; Peter Jackson 32nd; John Bull 34th; John Tennant 38th; Rod Medden 39th; Roy Steven 40th; Andy Bradley 44th; Alan Coates 49th; Graham Pugh 61st; Pasquale Pellecchia 62nd; Matt Jones 65th; Martin McColligan 69th; Ron Newton 73rd; Jason Stimson 74th.

● ANDY Kinney's fitness was tested to the limit as he completed the two-day Pilgrim Challenge North Downs Way Multistage Ultra race.

The Harlow Running Club member completed the 66-mile course in a fantastic time of 17 hrs, 49 mins and 43 secs.

The course took competitors along the North Downs National Trail, the oldest trade route in England.

The route followed the North Downs Way through the Surrey towns of Farnham and Merstham.

It included three climbs on each day with an ascent of more than 400ft!

The trade route was used by pilgrims in the Middle Ages to get from Winchester to Dover and onto the continent.

DAVID RIMMER ASKS IF THE USE OF DRS IN CRICKET IS A SOLUTION

THE DRS (Direct Referral System) used in international cricket has given rise to a few talking points, not least in the recent series between Pakistan and England.

It was not the reason why England were beaten – that was a deserved defeat for the world's No.1 Test team.

However, the DRS certainly helped the likes of Pakistan's ace spinner Saeed Ajmal and England left-arm spinner Monty Panesar.

Introduced to improve the accuracy of decisions such as lbw's (leg before wicket), it by and large illustrated that umpires, on the whole, make a lot of correct decisions.

A traditionalist such as former Test umpire Dickie Bird, 78, will feel that the on-field umpire should always have the final say.

Realists will say where there is technology, why not use the third umpire with the TV pictures?

It removes the element of doubt on most decisions and if nothing else it has shown how difficult an umpire's job has been over the years.

Obviously it will not be introduced in local cricket but the Star has spoken to experienced people involved within the sport for their views on the controversial system.

THE CRICKETER'S STAND

CROWD attendances in Test cricket in many parts of the world are dwindling at a time the game has become more interesting.

Ex-Sawbridgeworth skipper and former Essex county player Danny Wilson, who lives in Old Harlow, feels that the DRS technology is making it more of a spectacle. Spinners in particular are profiting from more positive lbw decisions.

He said: "I think it's a good thing for the game. It has moved games on more quickly, as opposed to having drab drawn games of five days without anything much happening."

"It makes Test cricket more interesting, ironically at a time when fewer people are watching it!"

He added: "In the most recent Test series there has been a record number of lbw's."

Wilson (33) is extremely well qualified to comment on the subject.

He has played with Test cricketers and although more of a batsman these days, bowled much more when he was younger.

He said: "It's becoming more and more difficult to be a batter. For years it has been a batsman's game."

"Things are happening. That can only be good for the game. They [the batsmen] cannot afford to let the ball hit the pads."

Decisions can still cause comment.

Kevin Pietersen was given out lbw in the third Test against Pakistan and the decision was verified by the third umpire after the ball was shown to be just clipping the leg-stump.

Under the traditional interpretation Pietersen would have been given the benefit of the doubt. Wilson said: "You are almost defending against balls a width of either [side] of off and leg stump [in addition to the three stumps]."

Wilson also feels that all countries should adopt DRS and that a country like India cannot exonerate themselves from it.

Harlow Cricket Club skipper Luke Heskett feels that DRS is good for the game and batsmen must not be selfish in its use.

The 22 year-old said: "It's making for more correct decisions. There should only be two referrals – it's there to correct obvious mistakes."

"If there were more referrals, people would use it for tactical reasons. If you know you are out, you [the batsman] should not use it. Some batsmen use it in a rush of blood."

years.

He cited various examples of how batsmen have out-witted spinners and umpires over the years by just kicking the ball away – and avoiding a contentious lbw decision.

"They will not be able to get away with it. Batsmen will have to use their bats," he said.

"There has been a conservative attitude to umpiring that will be washed out."

Furber feels DRS can be used as a training tool and its application should be universal.

He said: "It could be a valuable coaching tool for umpires. They can look at trajectories of the balls and where they go."

"I have a strong view that all test matches should be played under the same conditions and am unhappy that the Indian Cricket Board are only using part of it."

Bob Mills, an umpire and also the fixtures secretary with the Herts & Essex Cricket League, also feels DRS can only help cricket. Mills (49) has played for Thorley for 36 years and has recently qualified as an umpire.

He said: "It certainly is a help. I would be very grateful for the assistance."

"It has enhanced the game. It's changing the way batsmen play. They can no longer kick the ball away or they will be given out."

He added: "The overall standard of umpiring has been high in this [Pakistan v England] series, though bowlers and batsmen see things differently."

However, Mills thinks DRS is not yet definitive. "It's not a foolproof system because 'hot spot' is not 100 per cent. Earlier in the series [the second Test], somebody was given out lbw, but there was a doubt that the 'hot spot' technology had [failed to] spot an earlier edge," he said.

"Nasser Hussain thought the batsman should have been given the benefit of the doubt, but [Ian] Botham thought that there was no edge on the bat and he should be given out."

This shows how difficult it is for umpires.

Mills added: "I feel that if technology is not clear, the benefit of the doubt should be given to the batsman."

THE OFFICIAL'S VIEW

UMPIRE Rob Furber is a strong advocate of the DRS technology which has been used in Test cricket for the last four years.

The 55 year-old, from Linwood in Sawbridgeworth, umpired at Home Counties Premier Cricket League division two east level in 2011, as well as in the Saracens Hertfordshire League (divisions one and two) over the last three years.

A capable cricketer in his day, Furber played for Sawbridgeworth Cricket Club for 25 years and more recently for St Margaretsbury (from 2002 to 2010).

He said: "As an umpire I am for it. I would not feel threatened by its existence. I would work with it rather than find it a threat."

"I would favour three reviews as Test cricket innings' can be quite long."

Furber believes the introduction of new technology is crucial to move the game forward. He said: "There is more chance of getting things right. Players' livings are on the line. You have to reduce errors."

Furber's love for the game was fostered when he grew up in Newport, South Wales. He has a feel for how cricket has developed over the last 45

Worlds up for GB ace

Athlete eyes Istanbul date

By DAVID RIMMER
david.rimmer@hertsessexnews.co.uk

ANDREW Osagie is anxious to bounce back from a knee injury and book a spot in the 800m at the IAAF World Indoor Athletics Championships in Istanbul next month.

The ace runner, from Northbrooks in Harlow, has a chance to do this when he competes in the Aviva Grand Prix international at Birmingham this Saturday.

Osagie, who turns 24 on Sunday, picked up the injury to his right knee when he was altitude training in Kenya with the Great Britain training team towards the end of 2011.

He has subsequently undergone rehabilitation work.

After staying out of the European Indoor Trials and UK Championships event at Sheffield last weekend – in which he was 800m runner-up a year ago – Osagie feels he is now fully fit.

He said: "It was disappointing to miss out on the event at Sheffield. There has been inflammation of the knee. It has been okay for the last week or two."

"There's a good atmosphere at Birmingham and I like competing there. I'm looking forward to getting out and racing."

MARCHING ON: Harlow Athletic Club and Great Britain star 800m runner Andrew Osagie

He added: "The first goal is the World Championships – the main focus is to get the qualifying time of 1:48.00 for Istanbul."

"I am setting the standard for myself at the moment. I was good today [Tuesday] and I have had two good weeks."

The Harlow Athletic Club member said there is also another race in Stockholm, Sweden next Wednesday for him to go to before the big event in Turkey from March 9-11.

"I got to the semi-finals in the World Indoor Championships two years ago. I want to get to the final and then who knows what will happen. I want to win it."

Whatever happens, Osagie also wants to get the build up dead right for this summer with the Olympics very much at the back of his mind.

There is the European Championships in Helsinki, Finland from June 27 to July 1.

There is then the big one – the London 2012 Olympics.

"I do not want to look back and wish I had done this or that," he said.

"That is why things like rehabilitation or strength and conditioning are crucial."

Osagie's focus at the moment is the indoor season.

He is uncertain over the Great Britain selection policy for the European Championships, but is very keen to compete in this event and the Olympics.

"I want to do the best I can and it would be special to compete in the Olympics in front of my family," he said.

"All I can do is the best, whether it is now or in four years time. The results will look after themselves."

● Osagie is seeking sponsorship to help with expenses and if anybody wants to help call his management team at Pace Sports Management on 0208 9431072.

Sad for Spurs if Redknapp quits - Osagie

SPURS-mad Andrew Osagie admitted he would be distraught if Harry Redknapp quit the North London club.

The Harlow athlete took a break from his preparations for qualifying for the World Indoor Championships to offer his thoughts on Fabio Capello's replacement. He said: "I'm a massive Spurs fan. He has been such a good manager for Spurs and if he had to go I would be gutted. I would hate to see him go."

"People want him as England manager and I would be very happy as an England fan."

"People want an English manager. A few years ago, Greece [European Championship winners 2004] showed what you can do if you get the players in the right frame of mind."

Hawks boss swoops for striker Osei

HAWKS boss Danny Chapman hopes to complete the signing of striker Emmanuel Osei from fellow Ryman League division one north club Brentwood Town today (Thursday).

It comes after Harlow Town put in a seven-day approach for the former Hawks star earlier this season.

Nothing materialised then, but the Harlow Town manager is confident he can capture the pacey former Ware and Waltham Abbey player this time.

Osei wrote to the FA when he was left disappointed when Brentwood refused to release him.

However, Osei then took matters further and asked to be released from his Brentwood contract. He has now been freed and should switch to Barrows Farm in the next day or so.

Chapman said: "He should be signing for us on Thursday."

"We had tried to sign him earlier this season and could not make another seven-day approach while he was at Brentwood. Brentwood would not release him."

He added: "He has now approached us."

Chapman was keen to get Osei on board and was quick to enthuse about his qualities.

He said: "He was at Harlow before. He is very quick and mobile. He is a direct forward and can play wide right."

"He can score goals and is good at running at players. We are coming into the last third of the season and him coming in will mean there is competition for places."

Chapman now has Osei, Piers Wixson, James Pearman, Ben Jones and Jeff Hammond as options up front.

Osei is likely to be on the bench for Saturday's home game against Cheshunt in Ryman League, division one north.

Harlow's scheduled home game against Redbridge last Saturday was postponed because of snow on the Barrows Farm pitch.

ON THE MOVE: Striker Emmanuel Osei is set to return to Harlow Town

This means Ryan Kirby's one-match suspension carries over to the Cheshunt game this Saturday, but he will be available for the away game at Redbridge on Tuesday.

The home game against Redbridge has been rescheduled for Tuesday March 20.

The Hawks have also rearranged their postponed league game at Heybridge Swifts. This will now be played on Tuesday March 6. Donny Barnard (calf injury) is expected to replace Kirby against Cheshunt if he recovers in time.

Ex-Hawks defender Jack Lampe could be drafted in on a short-term loan.

Chapman said: "Christian Wheeler [Hawks assistant manager] has spoken to Rod Stringer at Stortford and he is happy to help out."

Harlow lost 2-0 at Cheshunt earlier this season, but Chapman is not looking for revenge.

"We have not played for three weeks and will be raring to go. We are not looking for revenge as if we do that we could approach it in the wrong way," he said.

"We are looking for three points as we are against Redbridge [on Tuesday]."

Midfielder Getro Kilapi (knee injury) could be on the bench for Saturday.

Midfielder Leon Lalite is suspended.
